WHY A CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY

MICHAEL P. WALSH, S.J.
President, Boston College

OUR PREMISE:

EVER since the stirring days of its inception as a republic, the United States has been the scene and the agent of change. This has been particularly true in the area of special concern to us, education. President Johnson's frequent reminder that in our social and economic life "ceaseless change is the one constant" seems to have special relevance for the education order, and there is no gainsaying the fact that the level of education which has recently undergone and will continue to undergo the most dramatic change is higher education.

The university has become a focal and influential institution in American society. Government, business, and industry turn to the university as an indispensable partner in their affairs. Application and enrollment figures for all levels of university training are astronomical in comparison to the numbers the university accommodated twenty years ago. University-based research enjoys unprecedented prosperity, and the prestige and practical rewards of the academic profession are at a new high. Yet along with their prestige and affluence, American universities face mountainous problems.

First is the problem of numbers. This year one half of the population of the United States is under twenty-five years of age, and we are approaching the day when well over half of our young people will seek some kind of post-high school education. With the rising number of students have come tensions, discontent, and student protests. In an age of multiplying knowledge and increasing specialization, fewer university teachers are interested in teaching the elementary courses in their discipline which are part of the liberal education of the non-specialist. We have made little progress in healing the breach between the two worlds of empirical science and the humanities, and despite the baby step recently taken by the federal government in establishing a National Foundation for the Arts and the Humanities, it is scientific brainpower that is and will continue to be lavishly subsidized with federal dollars. This points up another dilemma of the university: how to maintain its autonomy, when increasing amounts of its support come from governmental and other non-disinterested sources. Paradoxically, while public universities are faced with the problem of their independence, the independent or private universities are faced with the problem of continued strength, to a large extent for the same reason: the presence or absence of governmental funds. It is not just a matter of rhetoric, therefore, to say that the American university of 1966 is a Colossus in transition.

AS an integral part of the American academic pattern, the Catholic university shares all the problems endemic to American universities and confronts special problems of its own. While the stronger Catholic universities have probably made greater progress in excellence in the last two decades than their secular counterparts, a spirit of ferment and progress, of aggiornamento and a drive towards contemporary relevance has recently touched all of Catholic higher education.

*"There is one other relevant movement which is sweeping through the Christian world and beyond. This is the 'ecumenical' movement. From the standpoint of the Catholic Church this means positive and sympathetic approach to all religious, especially dissident Christian bodies. It means an openness on the part of Catholics for debate and discussion, a readiness to re-examine traditions, to discard what is dated, unnecessarily divisive or historically accidental. It means also within the Church a mature self-confidence, a levelling of the siege-walls, a serene conviction that scholarship, that criticism, that sympathy for others will confirm what is essential in Faith and morals and will draw all men together."

The second Vatican Council with its open windows, its decrees on ecumenism, collegiality, liberty and the importance of the laity in the Church has had a profound impact on Catholic colleges and universities. So in Catholic academic circles there is soul-searching, questioning and probing such as we have not engaged in since the founding of Catholic higher education on this continent. The basic question is being posed: What is the rationale for the existence of the Catholic university? What is its identity?

*"The modern Catholic University in America need no longer be a defensive institution, closed in on itself and separated from the culture in which it exists. On the contrary, it is an institution open to the whole of modern culture."

What is its unique or specific contribution that makes it as an institution of higher learning distinct from, let us say, Harvard or the University of Massachusetts?

In his book The Christian Commitment, Karl Rahner observes that it is difficult to say the right thing and more difficult to say it at the right time. What is sad here now will undoubtedly be a faltering anticipation of more definitive pronouncements that will emerge in the months ahead.

We can begin by sketching in broad strokes what the Catholic university's primary purpose is and what it is not.

The Catholic university's primary objective, as regards its students, is the same as that of every true university: the intellectual development of the students. A Catholic university would not be true to its essence if it did not place primary emphasis on being, first and foremost, a university. Thus the Catholic university shares with all universities the triple mission of instruction, research, and service.

THE Catholic college or university is not the Catholic Church. Its raison d'être is not identical nor coterminous with that of the Church. The Church's grand design, of course, is the sanctification of man through the faith of Christ. Faith is a supernatural gift of God which may be received into an altogether rude intelligence. What is given, however, is truth and the gift is made to human intelligence. Intelligence itself is a gift of God, a natural gift we call it, which deserves and needs cultivation for its own sake but also, as Origen once said, because in the understanding of faith a civilized intelligence is "of no small help." The civilization of intelligence is a humanistic and scientific process, whereas the understanding of Christian faith is a religious and supernatural one. The processes are distinct but it helps to have them related. The direct purpose of the Catholic university, therefore, is the civilization of intelligence.

Failure to make these distinctions leads to confusion in the operation of a Catholic institution of learning and to confusion in evaluating its effectiveness.

Colleges were regarded by many, including educators, as seminaries. The Civil War president of Amherst College answered the question "What is the province of the college?" by saying: "It is by instruction, discipline, and all good influence to make MEN, especially Christian men, and most of all ministers of Christ, and these of the highest order of character. . . . I would have the College for all coming time the most powerful engine for building up the Kingdom of our Redeemer."

Certainly moral and spiritual formation have an important part in the total educational process. But at the same time one has to hold always, as did Cardinal Newman, that the primary purpose of a university is intellectual formation, involving a philosophical and theological sophistication in the total teaching and learning process. As Newman clearly stated, our business is to lead men to knowledge, not directly to forge men into apostles or saints. The Catholic college and university has a very important responsibility in the spiritual growth and development of its students, but this is not its primary responsibility.

The function of a theology department is not preaching but rather the creation of an intellectual formation that will not be overturned by emotionalism or by the fad of the day.

There is urgent need to provide in a Catholic college or university places where a community of Christians can come together in a free and open religious life.

Religion has a place in a university, not just outside the classroom, but in the classroom as well. This is being acknowledged more and more by secular universities, which are establishing departments of religion throughout the country and a university is incomplete if it does not include this dimension of human experience.

We are now ready to confront the question that is being asked by Catholics and by our friends and critics not of the Catholic faith: What is the purpose of a Catholic university? What functions does it have that results in a distinctive contribution as a Catholic university?

First as regards its student, the aim of the Catholic university is the civilization of intelligence in an atmosphere of Christian living and Christian thinking. The purpose of the Catholic university as regards its students is to move them from unconscious to conscious thinkers, from people who have their values by tradition to people who have a reflective grasp on their values; to move them from people who depend on what other people say to them or do for them, to a position in which they are self motivating, in which they are able, in the best meaning of the term, to think for themselves.

"The Jesuit University is going to have to be interested in the total development of the student, it is going to be interested in the total development of each student as a person. It is going to be interested in the development of this student within a commitment to Christianity. It is going to be interested in the development of this student in the world in which we find ourselves. Consequently, a total development of a human being."

The second unique function of the Catholic university has relation to the Church itself. The Catholic university should be and must be in the future much more than it has been in the recent past, the place where the Church does its thinking.

This means, that the Catholic university must be free to analyze and critically evaluate the formulations, policies, defenses, and practical orientations of the Church.

Father John Courtney Murray has described the Catholic university as operating on the borderline where the Church meets the world and the world meets the Church, with the special responsibility of interpreting the world to the Church and the Church to the world. We are blessed to have on our faculty—scholars who are not of the Catholic faith, whose insights and perspectives illumine our task and make possible within the University family the kind of open discussion that helps the Catholic university be the center of living thought that serves the intellectual mission of the Church.

"The Jesuit University, as an instrument within this world development, as leading forward at this Renaissance of the Church, as establishing the kinds of centers of culture that are necessary in the modern world, must bring to bear the full wealth of all of our culture and our cultures today. It must be a Catholic university in every sense of the word."

A third distinctive function of the Catholic university is to attempt to heal the schism between the sacred and the secular orders. The Second Vatican Council has given Catholics a new understanding and appreciation of the strengths, the values, and the proper integrity of the secular order. With this new understanding the Catholic university is in a strategic position to fashion a unity of the two orders, to point to a new synthesis of sacred and secular. If the Catholic university can show that commitment and free inquiry can prosper together, then secular scholarship can find both meaning and increased depth in a religious milieu. The non-Catholic milieu is over-weighted towards the secular. Until recently the Catholic milieu was overweighted towards the sacral, but in view of what may be called the rehabilitation of the secular through the decrees of the Ecumenical Council, there is great hope that the Catholic university will become a creative center for identifying and interpreting to the world ways in which the forces of the City of God and the City of Man may blend in the promotion of the good life.

Looking closer to home we find, not surprisingly, that Boston College too is a university in transition.

OUR GOALS:

WE have to ask where we are going as a University. We need to define our objectives in this era of change. We have to ask how the University can make an appropriate contribution towards the accomplishment of our broad institutional goals as a Jesuit, Catholic, American, Urban University here in Boston in 1966. We have to keep before our eyes, our threefold mission as a University; the acquisition of knowledge, which is the mission of research; the transmission of knowledge, which is the mission of teaching; and the application of knowledge, which is the mission of public service.

I would now like to outline for you some of the intentions and desires we have for the University.

As far as students are concerned, we do not intend to increase our numbers but rather to continue to develop a stronger selectivity. One of the things we plan for this year is a study of our admissions policies and procedures. There is need to use a wider variety of criteria than scores and grades. We are increasing our Admissions Office staff in order to carry out our recruitment program.

As soon as we complete our building program for student residences, hopefully by 1970, 80% of our undergraduates will be residential.

Despite possible future tuition increases, an increase in scholarship aid as well as loans and work-study support will assist students. There is serious need for a state scholarship program here in Massachusetts such as many progressive states now sponsor so that Massachusetts students may still have freedom of choice in selecting the college they attend.

We have a continuing need for expanded and centralized counseling services for the University, but the physical centralization will have to await the completion of the Social Science Center.

Much needs to be done to develop the cultural life of the campus and while this will be greatly facilitated by the construction of an Arts Center, we must be energetic in finding ways to foster the arts on campus even before a new building is added.

As far as graduate students are concerned, the greatest need is a strong recruitment program to attract more talented, full-time students in every department of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. This is undoubtedly the most critical problem facing most of our departments in the graduate area.

As regards faculty development we still have need for greater strength in some areas. We wish in the near future to establish six distinguished professorships supported by endowment. The first has already been donated and we are now designating it for the Department of Theology to be used for a distinguished Professor, preferably in the area of ecumenism. A Jewish friend donated it to honor a Catholic member of our Board of Regents, Augustus C. Long.

Although our concern will always be for good teaching, our greatest need at this time is for a heavier output of research and publication. We can take pride in our tradition of concern for teaching in all divisions of the University. There is no doubt, however, that we have yet to achieve an across-the-board level of research and publication to match our teaching tradition, and we will not achieve maturity as a University until our faculty are recognized by their students as challenging teachers and by their peers outside the University as productive scholars.

Increasingly we will face a serious problem in the handling of basic, required courses and it is to be hoped that even a faculty of rising prestige will acknowledge its responsibility in this direction and not abandon such courses to teaching fellows.

As far as administration is concerned, we are going to have to increase the numbers devoted to the administration of our affairs and we will be making an effort in this direction during the next several years. The number of Jesuits at Boston College is going to decrease both absolutely and relatively to our growing staff. This means that more lay administrators will be appointed, with significant financial implications for our operating budget.

In the area of construction the new library will be our next project after the Social Science Center, which will start this fall. We are in pressing need for more facilities for faculty, for administrative offices, and especially for research and for the improvement of the out-of-class life of our students, undergraduate and graduate.

As far as academic programs are concerned, I believe there is a need to innovate, to experiment with the curriculum in all departments and schools. Each division should establish what kind of graduate it wishes to produce and consider how successful it has been in achieving this purpose and how well its program is geared to accomplish the desired end.

At the graduate level each department, especially those with doctoral programs, must settle upon the specific area or areas in which it seeks and is likely to achieve eminence. What strengths does it have or can it build that can render it "distinguished" or "attractive", to use the terms of the American Council on Education's recent study of the quality of graduate education. What unique offerings does it have that will make it the first choice of superior students?

Our primary emphasis for the next decade in academic development will be strengthening our Graduate School. This by no means implies a neglect of undergraduate education. Besides, it is now accepted as a fact of academic life that the faculty, facilities and atmosphere needed for flourishing undergraduate schools are going to depend more and more on the vitality and prestige of the graduate programs in the same institution.

We currently have seven departments offering the doctorate. The departments of Modern Languages and Psychology are seeking final approval of their proposed Ph.D. programs, and the English and Mathematics departments have doctoral programs under consideration. By 1970 we plan to mount an impressive doctorate in Theology. Preliminary to that we will be cooperating in inter-institutional courses and institutes with neighboring divinity schools and religion departments. We are also formulating plans for a Theological Research Center which will focus on and seek to excel in research in one particular area of theological study.

In general I think we should capitalize more on our geographical situation and engage in more cooperative graduate endeavors with neighboring universities. In a number of areas we are reaching a level of excellence where we should be exploring the possibility of mutually advantageous cooperative relations with Brandeis, Harvard, MIT and other institutions.

IN the area of service to the community we have had some notable accomplishments, for example, the Citizens Seminars. It is our responsibility as a university, especially an urban university, to do much more. Perhaps our most significant contribution can be in research affecting the community, and I expect that research conducted by the School of Education, the Institute of Human Sciences, the School of Social Work, the Behavioral Science departments, the Public Affairs Bureau, the Bureau of Business Research, and the College of Business Administration will constitute our most impressive service to the community.

At the same time it is essential that we develop more conferences, workshops, and institutes—again largely through the professional schools—both during the academic year and in the summer. We must also be more aggressive in providing Adult or Continuing Education offerings of quality, for example, in theology, in the behavioral sciences, in the arts and so on.

When we speak of our obligation to serve the community, community is not intended in a local geographical sense. Today's university community is the world. It is time Boston College became actively involved in some international programs, such as the kind of operation that is sponsored by AID in Latin America and other countries. Within the scope of our own interests and competence we surely have the capacity—and the responsibility—of making a contribution towards international development.

Meanwhile our local contributions in the literary and cultural area, which have been significant in the last decade, will increase. Indeed, however wide the horizons of our interests or activities become, we will always have a special service commitment to the Boston area.

It has perhaps become evident from a number of things I have been saying that we very much need some long-range planning. To this end we are launching a ten year plan to gather data that will give us a realistic view of our strengths and capabilities, to serve as the basis for sound policy formation by faculty and administration.

I began by speaking of change and the rate of change. In the university world much of the change is a by-product of the explosion of knowledge. No university can hope to grow in all directions so as to keep abreast, much less ahead, of the growth of knowledge, hence it is most important, that each area of the University decide on what parts or segments of its special field it will concentrate. The desire for high standards and for excellence makes essential a prudent selectivity, not only of students and faculty members, but also of areas of concentration in the various disciplines. And so when we talk of a ten-year plan, it is not only for the Philosophy department, the Biology department, or the School of Social Work, but for every other unit of the university.

We can't talk about a ten-year plan without mentioning finances. Tuition, of course, will continue to be one source of revenue. We have launched the second phase of our development program—this time for $25,000,000 over the next five years. When our present building program is completed, our fund raising will continue but will be devoted to faculty endowment and scholarship aid.

As you know there are several federal agencies which assist universities with matching grants for new buildings and facilities. Federal money will surely continue to be available and substantially large amounts should be coming to us in the future for research equipment, for fellowships and assistantships, for service operations and for experimental academic programs. At present we do not have open to us the kind of state assistance that we hope will develop in Massachusetts in the near future. Most states have loan programs with low interest rates for revenue producing facilities such as residence halls and dining areas. Ohio, New York and other states are introducing programs for the construction of facilities for private institutions of higher education, whereby the state leases the land temporarily and after a period of years the building is owned by the university. At present Massachusetts has no program for assisting private colleges and universities, but hopefully it will in the not too distant future.

There is need for vision, creative imagination and courage to move the University forward along the lines of programs that we all want.

We do not have all the answers nor all the questions. It is essential that together we proclaim an overwhelming and unending desire to find the right questions and to work together on their solution. We can never afford to be smug or complacent as if we already knew all the questions and possessed all the answers. We are most anxious to exert any effort, to break any mold to achieve Boston College's true function as a Catholic university of distinction.

HONORS PROGRAMS —

EDUCATION FOR THE MODERN MAN

ALBERT M. FOLKARD '37
Director, Honors Program

"The end of all industry is the production of human beings of a finer quality, and unless this end is realized and achieved, no measure, however great, of material success, can redeem it from failure. It is the task of our institutions of higher learning to train leaders who will have the vision and the power to direct this great transformation."

President Frank Aydelotte, Inaugural Address — Oct. 22, 1921, at Swarthmore College.

Honors education and Honors programs have a long history in American education, reaching back to the first quarter of our century. "The private Eastern Colleges, rather than the large State Universities, took the initiative . . . and until recently their efforts have had the greatest influence." Columbia, Harvard, Swarthmore — names to conjure with! All were dedicated to a common task, "the providing of special treatment for talented students."

To define and elaborate upon these early efforts at Honors Education is not my purpose here. But one or two observations are in order. First, Honors Education originated in the Liberal Arts College and from the beginning was closely tied to the purpose of undergraduate education. Second, although the innovations at Swarthmore, Columbia and Harvard assumed different forms — all aimed at finding approaches to education that would challenge the superior and highly talented student.

Through the Twenties and Thirties a number of colleges, mostly private, developed programs of their own following the lead of Columbia and Swarthmore especially. Important programs at Princeton, Yale, Chicago, Reed, University of Kansas, University of Colorado, initiated during this time developed their own unique structures and, surviving through the difficult War years became major influences in the concerted, national effort to extend the idea of Honors Education to all the Colleges and Universities in the nation.

In 1957, with the formation of the Inter-University Committee on the Superior Student, a central agency for the collection and dissemination of information on Honors activities across the nation and an information service on Honors Programs, the drive was on, with results best seen in the catalogues of a great many colleges across the country, wherein "Honors Program" is a most familiar entry.

TALENTED STUDENTS

Among the 600 or more students who enter the College of Arts & Sciences at Boston College every September, some ten to fifteen percent will have been invited to join the Honors Program because, in the considered judgment of a group of interested Faculty and the Director, they will have been identified as "Honors Calibre", "gifted" or "superior students".

What is a superior student? How do you identify him? What are his qualities of mind and how do they assert themselves? What are his aspirations?

The criteria used are many and varied; all do not have equal value, and some have changing value in relation to students of different cultural background. No one on its own is a perfectly valid tool. For their proper use, patience, experience, humility, wisdom, and faith are required. High school records, aptitude — (verbal and math) and achievement test scores, scholarship, awards, and high school honors are valuable and important factors to be assessed individually and jointly. But they are not all! The recommendations of high school teachers or the principal, the impression created by interview, many times add dimensions not developed by any other instruments. Properly and wisely used, these criteria can provide a common denominator for selection and they tell much.

The superior student is highly motivated, and excited by and interested in "the new adventure" as he sees it. He is highly intelligent and generally a well-organized worker. He is quite frank in his criticisms of himself and others. He is generally the graduate of a high school, private or public, where committed teachers have developed the programs and opportunities that satisfied and challenged him.

Nevertheless, within this larger grouping two distinct types of students emerge:

Type A — His mastery of requisite skills is such that he does well what he is asked to do. He "achieves." Education for him is a detached intellectual exercise culminating in the symbol of success, good grades, and the Deans' List. Education for him is ordinarily not a disturbing experience since he has charted his course and follows it successfully and "safely", but the possibility for growth is significantly reduced.

Type B — Equally as brilliant as his counterpart but searching for relevance. Committed, seeking the significance of value in facts, education for him is a human enterprise in which he as a person is emotionally involved. He questions himself and others, never satisfied with the easy answer. Education for him means growth in maturity and stability. He bothers everyone from professor to his counselor, happily for all!

In a society that places ever greater demands on specialized knowledge in all fields of endeavor, the essential and vital purpose of Liberal Arts Education—teaching a young man what it is to be a man, "a questioning creature seeking to know himself, to use and refine his natural powers, to realize what he alone, of living creatures, has imagination to conceive and admire"—is and has been in serious danger of defeat if not obliteration.

The evidence for this is familiar to all with a serious concern for Liberal Education and too well publicized to need proof. However one example that points towards its effects on students, the vital concern of undergraduate education, is in order.

"Substantial changes are needed in the educational offering of the campus. Our students are substantially different in maturity, preparation, and orientation than they were twenty years ago. We intend to pursue with further research the implications of this fact. Studies already known to us show that a significant and growing minority of students are simply not propelled by what we have come to regard as conventional motivation. Rather than aiming to be successful men in an achievement-oriented society, they want to be moral men in a moral society. They want to lead lives less tied to financial return than to social awareness and responsibility. Our educational plans should recognize these values. In general, our students will benefit from increased responsibility for their own education. We should make available to the students at all stages, rich opportunities, reliable information, and sound advice, then let them make the important decisions about their own education and face the consequences."

"It is true that the role of the professor in society has become enormously enlarged, and that the University is no longer the only force influencing him. The increase of knowledge has forced on him a new degree of specialization."

"It would be most desirable if this campus could maintain its present eminence by continuing to develop a distinctive style of education that emphasizes student self-selection, attracting outstanding young people and discouraging the mediocre."

"Our higher curricula dominate the lower and are given a disproportionate share of our resources. Some departments have imposed on the undergraduate majors the splintering and specialization proper to graduate study, and there may be some narrow and specialized departments which should not offer their own undergraduate majors at all."

"Most departments provide well for major students who are heading for graduate school; this is perhaps our greatest teaching strength. Some departments, however, may seriously harm the education of other, terminal, majors by grossly overplaying the element of specialization which is admittedly essential to all majors."

"Departmental preoccupation with major programs has had its most damaging effect on the lower division and non-major parts of the curriculum."

"Too often the student's experience outside the major neither answers his personal desires nor has the compensating validity of being socially useful or intellectually coherent." (From the preliminary report of the Select Committee on Education, Academic Senate, University of California, Berkeley, May 24, 1965).

Honors Education should and can be a principal bulwark, strongly defended and manned, to guard against such educationally destructive tendencies.

SPECIAL TREATMENT

However, a major shift in emphasis occurred in what was taken as the meaning of "honors" from the twenties and middle fifties and was successfully communicated through the national conferences organized by the Inter-University Committee on the Superior Student and its publication "The Superior Student".

For example, the ICSS proposed less emphasis on specialization than had been common. It stressed the importance of a four year program, one that would include both general and departmental honors. Talented and otherwise promising students, it suggested should be identified and made to participate in honors as early as possible—ideally at the time of college entrance. "Honors belongs in professional schools as well as in the liberal arts colleges." Increasing the work load is not enough to qualify as real honors; talented students, the ICSS insisted, require a different curriculum and different teaching methods and materials. "The stress should be on excellence rather than grades, and this stress on excellence should help to raise the level of the entire institution. And finally, students themselves should help to formulate the honors program through suggestions and evaluations. In brief, honors is not simply a device to produce good specialists faster, but a means of enriching the intellectual life of the student along lines that he, with expert and sympathetic faculty guidance, could learn to choose for himself."

HONORS AT BOSTON COLLEGE: THE COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES

The Honors Program at Boston College was established in 1958, assisted by a grant from the Carnegie Foundation. It was established as the result of a nationwide movement in higher education which concerned itself during the 1950's with the special problems attending the education of superior students. The education of exceptionally talented or outstanding dedicated students has not been, traditionally, an important consideration in the egalitarian circumstances of American education. There is, then, about all Honors education, and this includes Honors education at Boston College, an air of novelty, excitement, and ferment. The history of programs for superior students throughout the country is a history of experiment and controversy. This is true as well at Boston College.

The Honors Program at Boston College began with high and intense expectations of success, especially with the enthusiasm and support of adventurous faculty. It has successfully acted as a means of attracting a very high quality of student to Boston College, and its over-all effect has been that of spur and pacemaker in raising the level of academic achievement throughout the entire College of Arts and Sciences. At the same time, it has been the center of a great deal of critical observation, as it continually challenges traditional assumptions on which educational policies of both the college and the various departments have been based.

In the course of a Self Study conducted by the College of Arts and Sciences, in 1964, there was a reiteration of the necessity of an Honors Program which would be adventurous, experimental, and challenging. This, despite the fact that the faculty committee which studied the Program was well aware of the provocative course the Honors Program at Boston College had pursued. During the past years, the Program, with further innovations, has so successfully challenged established educational thinking that it has created a more energetic educational environment than it had ever enjoyed before.

This is not to say that the goal of Honors Education at Boston College is the overthrow of proven, traditional methods of teaching. By the very fact that the four-year General Honors program has for its matter those subjects which make up the core requirements for every student at the College, the program is complementary to the specialization which is proper to the selection of, and concentration in, a Major in the A.B. or B.S. program. At the same time there are departmental Honors programs (in History, English, Economics and Mathematics, for example), as well as the Modern Man course which draws students from every department. Clearly the scope of Honors Education is wide, and its range highly varied, adaptable to the needs and talents of the individual student.

THE PROGRAM OF STUDIES — SOME EXAMPLES

Modern Man: The Cultural Tradition

An experimental Program, this is a two-year-course for Freshmen and Sophomores, taught in a variety of ways ranging from lecture to discussions and seminar. It is a substitute for "core" courses in English and Theology. The course attempts to discover and assess the ideas, values and issues of Western Man in their cultural context and development through intensive reading of primary sources and discussion. There are no term examinations. Enrollment limited to 30 students in 15 man sections.

Special Sections

Reserved for Honors students, these sections are conducted by challenging teachers in the "core" courses, especially Philosophy, Theology, English, and Mathematics.

Junior Seminars

During the second semester of Junior year, each student in the Honors Program participates in a Seminar of his choice. He will be expected to contribute to the investigation of the topic the insights proper to the discipline in which he has concentrated for part of his college years.

Some examples of Seminars offered: 1965-1967.

1. Modern Problems in Chemistry, Professor Alan M. Phipps, Department of Chemistry.
2. The Expanding Metropolis, Rev. W. Seavey Joyce, S.J., Vice President of Boston College, formerly Professor of Economics.
3. An Examination of Approaches to the World, Professor K. Wolff, Department of Sociology, Brandeis University.
4. The Composite Image: An integrated approach to Literature, Intellectual History, and Fine Arts, Professor Richard Hughes, Department of English.
5. Studies in the History of Science, Professor Edward J. Collins, Department of History.
6. Georgian England, Thomas W. Perry, Department of History.
7. The Role of Explanation in Science, Rev. Edward M. MacKinnon, S.J., Department of Philosophy, Weston College.
8. Karl Rahner, Professor George Lindbeck, Yale Divinity School, Yale University.
9. Linguistic Aspects of Poetics, Professor L. G. Jones, Department of Linguistic Slavic Languages.
10. Sociology of the Priesthood, Professor John D. Donovan, Department of Sociology.
11. Research as an Enterprise, Professor Robert F. O'Malley, Department of Chemistry.
12. Seminar in Tragedy, Professor John L. Mahoney, Department of English.

Senior Thesis

Seniors in the Honors Program are expected to engage in research under the direction of a tutor ordinarily chosen by them and give evidence of the results in written form.

A.B. - M.A. Program

A four-year experimental program in conjunction with the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, for highly recommended students who have demonstrated to a conspicuous degree, their maturity, and exceptional ability to work independently and a genuine knowledge of their chosen field.

THE INTERNATIONAL HONORS PROGRAM

Two invigorating trends in American undergraduate education today are the honors movement and overseas study. Increasingly schools have been establishing "honors programs" for exceptional students while, at the same time, making the "year abroad" a more integral part of undergraduate experience. These trends have been developing independently.

The International Honors Programs unites these two educational concepts with cross-cultural comparative studies. Under the IHP, a highly select group of college juniors will have the opportunity of an academic year abroad in the comparative and interdisciplinary study of several countries, under the direction of accompanying preceptors.

Of the twenty one students in this program in its initial year, Boston College has the distinction of being the only college with two students in the program. Countries visited this year are: Japan, India, Poland and France.

OTHER SPECIAL PROGRAMS AT BOSTON COLLEGE

Special Programs—All academically talented students are eligible for special programs of Early Admission, Advanced Placement, or Sophomore Standing.

Early Admission—Admission to the Freshman Class will be granted to promising students of superior achievement and maturity who have completed the eleventh grade of secondary school. All applications for Early Admission without having fulfilled the requirements for a secondary school diploma are reviewed on an individual basis.

Advanced Placement—Entering Freshmen who have had courses of college-level quality may request Advanced Placement on one or more courses. Although Advanced Placement will ordinarily be granted only to those students who achieve satisfactory scores on the Advanced Placement Tests of the College Entrance Examination Board, students who have not had the opportunity to take these tests may also apply for Advanced Placement. Final placement as well as the amount of credit granted towards the degree, will be determined in each case by a review of the student's record and faculty recommendations as well as test scores.

Sophomore Standing — Entering students granted Advanced Placement in three or more subjects are ordinarily admitted directly into the Sophomore Class. These students are free to complete degree requirements and be graduated in three years.

Scholars of the College—Toward the end of each academic year, several members of the Junior class who have demonstrated the highest level of academic ability, intellectual maturity, and scholarly accomplishment, will be appointed Scholars of the College. With the guidance of a tutor, Scholars of the College draw up a program of studies, elect courses in some areas without fulfilling prerequisites, attend classes at their own discretion, and may undertake an honors thesis.

Boston College is justly proud that the Honors Program, enviroined as it has been for the past seven years by hearty discussion and debate, has yet managed to produce students whose acceptability to graduate schools as well as those of law and medicine, has been such that in the fellowship grants and range of disciplinary interests, the record of Boston College, College of Arts and Sciences, matches that of the best schools in the country.

AGENTS FOR ARGUMENT

TARGET: REVELATION

Boston College Alumni, who were active Fulton debaters while at the Heights, will be interested to know that presently the Fulton Society is enjoying its greatest triumphs in many years. Evidence of things to come was seen at the Boston University Tournament on October 29 when the B.C. Frosh, walked off with the second team trophy after meeting head on against varsity competition from teams representing 48 colleges and universities. Team members included John Sears, Portland, Maine; Charles Lawson, Chicago, Ill.; Ronald Hoenig, Rochester, N.Y.; and John David, River Forest, Illinois.

Then on November 18-19, B.C.'s Patrick Dobel of Kansas City and Tom Goodman of Chicago swept through the varsity competition representing 48 teams at the University of Vermont Tournament and emerged victorious securing the top honors. To add the coup de grace in the East, the Fulton Society sent Charles Brown and Mark Killenbeck to the Tufts University Tournament to compete against 65 teams. The freshmen, once again, showed their mettle by meticulously securing top honors. This was the Fulton Society's fourth victory in as many weeks. The Fultonians burdened with two huge trophies, victoriously returned to the Heights and presented their awards to another former Fultonian, Rev. Charles F. Donovan, S.J., Academic Vice President of Boston College.

Thus for the second time in the nineteen sixties, Fulton Moderator, John H. Lawton (M.A. '40) sees his debaters as having the potential to go after the American Championship in intercollegiate debating. And coached by James J. Unger '64, the debaters are carefully working and planning for their march to the national championship. The Fulton Society is comprised of members of each class and draw from many of the varied departments, lending an heterogeneous element to the group. Included on the schedule for upcoming tournaments in 1967 will be those held at Harvard University, February 2-4; Northwestern University, February 9-11; University of Pennsylvania, March 3-5; University of Kansas, March 9-11; and finally, the National Debate Tournament at the University of Chicago, April 20-22.

To encourage interest and participation in Boston College's debating activities, the Speech Department has developed an extensive debate and symposium program. This program while exposing dozens of B.C. students to community organizations, encourages civic interest in selected topics. The participating students, most of whom are writes: "The members of the organization came up at the end of the meeting in great numbers and congratulated the boys on their work which displays the great interest they have in the topic and their presentations, and this fact must demonstrate the quality of the instruction they are receiving at the college. You can be sure that being a graduate of Boston College in the class of 1922, I was very much impressed by the members of Dr. Lawton's course, Argumentation and Group Dynamics, have appeared before forty organizations throughout New England during the last thirteen months. The topic of debate is selected by the host organization from a list submitted to them by B.C.

The service organizations which have heard these discussions include the Boston Rotary, Kiwanis, and Junior Chamber of Commerce to name but a few. Programs have also gone to the Knights of Columbus Councils and the Holy Name Societies. Other varied organizations that have shown interest in this program include the Singles Club of the Second Unitarian Church in Boston; the College Club of the Tremont Temple in Boston; and five B'nai B'rith lodges. The B.C. men have also conducted programs at Cardinal Cushing College, Our Lady of the Elms College, Chicopee, and Pope John XXIII National Seminary.

Mr. William C. Canty, Program Chairman of Everett's Rotary Club, young men since they made an excellent appearance and conducted themselves as true gentlemen at all times."

During his visit to the Heights for the Boston College Speech Festival on November 5, Professor George Zeigelmueller of Wayne State University, Detroit, President of the American Forensic Association, was particularly interested in the community service program. He stated that only one or two other universities in the nation conducted such extensive debate-discussion programs through which college students find their audiences in an area of several states.

Several engagements are in the offing for April and May including a debate on the Vatican Council II and Its Treatment of Revelation on April 9 at the Park Street Church in Boston. A second church engagement will be for the college group at First Parish Church, Unitarian, in Concord, Mass., on Sunday, May 7. On this occasion the B.C. men will debate American Recognition of Communist China.

WILL POWER

ESTATE PLANNING AND DEFERRED GIVING

by FRANCIS J. DEVER, '42
Director, Estate Planning

WHY has Boston College established an estate planning service and a bequest and deferred giving program?

The best answer to this question is that Boston College can no longer afford not to have such a program — these programs raise money.

Almost always a deferred gift is financially advantageous to the donor as well.

Modest Gifts Are Welcome

It is not true that only large bequests and lifetime gifts are solicited by Boston College. Alma Mater has received and will continue to seek out substantial gifts wherever possible, but smaller gifts in the aggregate may equal or surpass large contributions. Just as important, the participation of the many may well be the means of influencing other and more affluent alumni and friends of the University to join in a common effort to support the educational future of Boston College.

Ways to Give to Boston College

A second reason for the program is to provide an approach by which alumni and friends may contribute to Boston College and at the same time give proper regard to their individual circumstances and personal obligations.

Boston College does this by calling attention to the various methods available for estate plan gifts and the comparative advantages to the donor of each method.

Boston College encourages each prospective benefactor to select the method which best meets his particular circumstances and to scale participation in proper balance with his personal obligations and situation.

What Is Estate Planning?

Estate planning by definition is very simple. It merely involves the arranging of a person's property, his home, his savings, his investments, his business interests, his retirement benefits, his insurance, etc., so that his wife and children can get the most benefit from them and as economically as possible when he is removed from the scene.

Tremendous Growth of Personal Wealth

Many people think of estate planning as a mysterious, significant, legalistic subject for sophisticated tax lawyers, accountants and insurance people.

Vaguely one thinks that estate planning does involve him; that it is something he should know something about; that some day he should do something about it, like talking to a lawyer or something but - - - .

Before the Second World War (and that means Depression times), estate planning was indeed reserved to the wealthy. In the 1930's, the million-dollar estate accounted for up to 42% of the total estate market in the United States.

During the past two decades, personal wealth has increased tremendously in our country, the base much broader than before. Today the million-dollar estate constitutes less than 25% of the value of the total estate market.

The redistribution of personal wealth in recent years has created many more of the small-to middle-sized Federal estate bracket estates—$60,000 to $200,000—than ever existed before.

Where Do You Fit Into This Financial Picture?

Do you own your own home, summer place, have some savings, own some bonds, stocks, insurance, have retirement benefits, own a business, have several automobiles? Do these assets, your capital, your wealth, add up to $60,000 or more in total value?

If so, your estate is subject to the federal estate tax upon your death.

Federal Estate Tax

If you are unmarried, your estate is not eligible for the benefit of the marital deduction. Unless you have other deductions to reduce the taxable estate, your estate can be pretty hard by federal taxation: the effective rate on a taxable estate of $100,000 would be 21.2%. On an estate in excess of $2,000,000 the tax would be a whopping 41.8%.

If you are married, your surviving spouse will, under federal laws derive definite financial benefits—IF the first of the couple to die owned most of the wealth and had arranged for it to be transmitted to the survivor so that the estate will qualify for the highly technical marital deduction.

Actuarially, of course, most wives survive their husbands. And it is important to remember that the estate of the survivor will not qualify, upon the death of the survivor, for the marital deduction. For tax purposes, such a survivor is not considered a married person.

Massachusetts Inheritance Tax

Except for (1) joint real estate occupied as the marital domicile and (2) insurance payable to a designated bene-iciary, a surviving widow and children are taxed by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts on the aggregate taxable interests passing to them individually in excess of $10,000. The rates start at 2.46%. A widow and children each inheriting property in excess of $50,000 are each subject to an effective rate of 4.92%. Joint bank accounts and joint bonds are fully taxable in Massachusetts and would be included in the aggregate interests subject to tax.

Income Tax Planning

Today, and all during your lifetime, your ability to save for yourself before and after your retirement and for your family before and after your death is substantially reduced by the income taxes you must pay to federal and state governments.

Income tax planning is simply a method for conserving and building your capital by taking the necessary steps to be certain that you pay no more than you are legally required to pay.

Sound income tax planning is the base upon which the sound estate plan is built.

An estate for which no will exists is called intestate. The broadened base of personal wealth in our country has necessarily brought an increase in the number and size of estates to be transferred to heirs. Many more wills are being probated annually, but there is a greater and disproportionate increase in the number of estates being administered without wills.

It has been estimated that about one in four of all estates administered by probate courts each year is the property of a person, who for some reason was not sufficiently informed or motivated to draw up a will and thus to avoid for his heirs the financial loss, inconvenience, and confusion which so often accompany intestacy.

A will is essential to the proper disposition of your estate.

Is A Will Enough?

A will is particularly important to the family man. But it is not everything.

Not all property passing at a decedent's death is controlled by a will, for example. Nor does a will dispose of joint property if there is a surviving joint owner. A will does not necessarily (or even ordinarily) dispose of insurance proceeds, and insurance is part of one's estate, although it is transmitted in accordance with the terms of the insurance contract.

Obviously, to have even a simple will and some insurance is better than to have no will and no insurance. Nevertheless, except in the most simple financial and family circumstances, a will nor insurance is a good substitute for a careful and well-defined plan for the disposition of your property upon your death.

Modern Estate Planning

It makes good sense to arrange your total estate — your home, savings, investments, business interests, retirement benefits, insurance, and other assets — in order to accomplish as economically as possible your personal objectives during your lifetime and to dispose of your property after your death in such a way that your family will receive the greatest benefits.

And it also makes good sense to seek out professional assistance from your attorney, accountant, trust officer, or insurance analyst. These are the men who are ordinarily best qualified to analyze with you your personal situation and needs and to determine with you how your personal objectives can best be met by translating your plan into a legally effective form.

Cost of An Estate Plan

The cost of planning your estate carefully depends in the first instance upon the size and complexities of your holdings. It will obviously be simpler to deal with assets of $20,000 than with $200,000. And, of course, planning the disposition of business interests or of one or more trusts can become very complicated and the cost commensurately higher.

Nevertheless, it is safe to say that the cost of planning is much lower than the possible cost of no planning. For one thing, no planning may cause excessive capital erosion through failure to take advantage of the tax laws. For another, the lack of planning may well raise additional expense in probating and administering your estate. It is even possible that one or more of your heirs may not receive a proper share of your estate because it has been improperly planned.

The disinheriting of any of your loved ones or the disproportionate distribution of your property counter to your intentions is a heavy price to pay for the lack of a carefully constructed plan by a competent professional.

The Interest of Boston College

But what, you may well ask, does this have to do with Boston College?

Simply this. If you will sit down with professional counsel and analyze your holdings with care and attention, your eyes may be opened to new ways and means for arranging the disposition of your estate to the maximum advantage of yourself during your lifetime and of your loved ones after your death.

We are confident, also that when you have become more familiar with the tax laws which encourage gifts to education, you may well find that you are in a position to make a deferred gift to Boston College at a much lower cost than perhaps you realize. In some cases, indeed, the net estate which passes to a survivor is even higher because of the tax advantages which accrue to a charitable gift.

Planning your estate is usually the largest single legal and financial transaction of a lifetime. You can make it additionally meaningful and important by helping future generations through a well-planned deferred gift to Boston College.

FACULTY BRIEFS

Prof. Priscilla Andrews of the School of Nursing recently received 3 grants: $15,000 from the Hood Foundation for a demonstration project in the Boston Floating Hospital; $30,000 from the U.S. Public Health Service for a workshop in "Nursing and Mental Retardation" and $4,500 also from Public Health for a demonstration project on "Intensive Nursing care for 10 mentally retarded children." . . . The National Science Foundation has granted Prof. George D. Brown a $21,000 grant for advanced geology studies in Southeastern Indiana.

. . . Prof. Leonard Casper of the English department has published another volume, "New Writing from the Philippines." Dr. Casper also contributed a number of essays to the Manila "Chronicle" . . . Rev. Walter J. Meagher, S.J. of the History department, in collaboration with William Grattan has authored a new book, "The Spires of Fenwick, A History of the College of the Holy Cross" (Vantage Press, 1966). . . . One of the new faculty members, Prof. Ritchie P. Lowry, holds his Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley. A former faculty member at his alma mater, he also taught at California State College and the American University in Washington and is listed in American Men of Science. A member of numerous professional associations, Dr. Lowry has published a number of articles and a book entitled "Who's Running This Town? Community Leadership and Social Change" (Harper & Row, 1965). . . . The present Executive Director of the Brookline Association for Mental Health, Alan J. Burnes, is currently a faculty member of the School of Education. Prof. Burnes was a Lehman Scholar at Harvard, where he earned his doctorate in Education. . . . Rev. James V. Skehan, Chairman of the Geology department spent three weeks near Tuscany, Italy in geological studies. As Director of the Boston College Geology-Astrogeology Research Team, he also directed a number of projects for the Air Force in Nova Scotia, Arizona and California. . . . Prof. Mildred D. Vieira of the Modern Languages department was assigned to Portugal for two years with the U.S. International Cooperation Administration, followed by a year of study at the University of Lisbon on a Fulbright grant. In addition to her teaching duties, Prof. Vieira also leads a weekly seminar in Portuguese and Brazilian literature at the New Bedford High School.

. . . Rev. Robert L. Ritchie, S.J. of the Theology department spent several months this past year at the Union Theological Seminary, gave a series of lectures at the English College in Rome and lectured at the North American College. B.C. GETS BOWL BID

Boston College has accepted an invitation to a bowl game — the General Electric College Bowl on the NBC-TV national network on Sunday, March 19. This television program has been featured on the network for over nine years and has proved to be one of the most popular of its kind.

Professor Albert Folkard, '37, Director of the Honors Program at the University has been named coach of the team which will be composed of four students to represent Boston College. Open competition has been underway during the past few weeks to select the team by competitive tests under simulated College Bowl conditions, with various faculty members assisting Prof. Folkard in the selection of the team members.

The College Bowl qualifications include a wide knowledge of many subjects, especially history, literature, music, art, current affairs and quick recall of numerous facts.

This will mark Boston College's second appearance on this program; its first being an exciting match against Rutgers University, an eventual five time winner, in 1960.

SCHOOL OF NURSING PLANS NEW ENRICHMENT PROGRAM

Aware of the tremendous growth of the community, the need for professionally qualified nursing personnel and its responsibility to modernize and continue the education of its alumni, The School of Nursing is planning a Professional Enrichment Series, scheduled to begin in March of 1967.

The continuation or the renewal of academic and professional interests will be the major emphasis throughout the program. Meetings currently being planned will serve as a basis for the series, and efforts will be made to incorporate new aspects of clinical practice.

Many faculty members as well as professional nurses, eminently qualified in their clinical fields of nursing will co-operate in offering the lectures and planned discussions. Leading the planning for the Series are Mrs. Marie Andrews, Chairman, Mrs. Mary Aubin, 'G'61, Miss Marie Cullinan, '51, Miss Janet Dunphy, '52, Miss Elizabeth Grady, '59, Mrs. Jane Hanon, Mrs. Dorothy Kelliher, '57, Mrs. Alice Lawler, '54 and Miss Pauline Sampson, 'G'54.

A REQUIEM FOR LEO . . .

Leo Haley was a graduate of the Class of 1964 and the School of Social Work, 1966, who as a member of the Sodality became very interested in the problems of the poor and racial discrimination. His recent untimely death was a tragic loss to all who knew him, a loss for interracial justice, and for all those regardless of race or position who are outcast and deprived. Leo's life was a short one, but a good one, a dedicated one. In his brief span he did more to make Christianity relevant here and now than many twice his age.

His most significant achievement was directing the energies of the Boston College Sodality towards the social problems of the Roxbury area. A Jesuit who knew him said, "He was really among the first to focus the attention of the Catholic Church in Boston on the problems of the city."

In the Mass of Remembrance celebrated for Leo Haley, Fr. J. Frank Devine, S.J., Director of the Men's Sodality paid eloquent tribute to this young man; "He walks no more among us and we feel his loss so acutely. Our hearts are heavy with sorrow but we are not ashamed. We have all been made richer in our own humanity."

Letters to the Editor

SIR:

In his book, "Travels with Charley", John Steinbeck candidly expresses what I think is the typical American zest for travel. There is a gusto to experience new ideas, to test old values, and even to exert personal influence. The challenge of fulfilling this trilogy becomes greater the farther away he is from his native environment, be it his home in Salinas, California, or his college campus in Massachusetts. The more unaccustomed a person presents himself to new company, the more clandestine these people will tend to be. In short, before there is an exchange of ideas or values leading to a mutual appreciation, there must be a common path of experience.

The American student in Europe, far from his ivory towers, suddenly finds the path blocked with ideological struggles, each advocating a contrary set of values. He finds himself petitioned to choose a side if the way is to be cleared, and the pursuit for the European culture to be continued. The naked realization that conflict between peoples does exist beyond the pages of the "weekly news magazine" strikes him shamefully unprepared to face the task. The de facto situation that he is a student warrants his "representative" opinion on the subject whether it be South Tyrol or South Vietnam.

Studying in Vienna, as I am, presents a unique opportunity for the American student. Here, in the once center of the Hapsburg monarchy, East meets West with Czechoslovaks, Rumanians, Yugoslavians, and Hungarians finding a common appreciation. These people live with their thoughts in a Westward direction in spite of the constant invitation to follow the Eastern way. I say thoughts, for when the last Russian soldier left Vienna a little more than ten years ago, Austria was given her independence on the condition that she remain neutral. Consequently, preferences are seldom given in public. Running through ideological differences is a loyalty to ancestral lineage which regrets that because one side advocates socialism and the other free enterprise, two brothers might permanently be separated. This nostalgia for old boundaries is found not only between the Balkan countries and Austria, but also between parts of Poland and Germany, between northern Italy and Austrian Tyrol, and between Western Germany and its old reich. Although the political union for nostalgic reasons is far fetched, these people do present a contingency which echoes the words of the popular song "Try to Remember." Thus the American student is confronted with the roots of brotherhood intermingled with ideological differences which prevent his passage to better understanding. Many of the Europeans, although sympathizing with the American cause in Vietnam, well remember the effects of Hitler's ambitions when he tried to unite a people and purge adverse elements from the German Reich. For this reason the U.S. presence in Vietnam is clouded with a haze of skepticism. In addition, Europeans realize that they are making economic progress despite institutional problems, and would not care to see this advancement interrupted by an armed conflict.

The student facing the domestic, political, and economic problems, in addition to the current controversial American image, must find a common mode of appreciation which will push aside the barriers of misunderstanding. I believe in the midst of this complexity there is an interwoven means of communication represented in the arts. It is in this direction that steps can be taken by the American student to remove the obstacles of misunderstanding. For example, one may read about the Uffizi Gallery in Italy and even see works of this era constructed in leading galleries in the United States. Until he is in Italy, however, and realizes the culture that surrounded this era can be appreciate the present-day ancestors who manifest their Italian tradition in everything they do. Travelling through Yugoslavia on my way to Greece, I met a Communist lady on the train with whom I found it difficult to find a basis which she considered a safe topic of conversation. After discovering that she taught retarded children through art forms, I took up the subject of the usefulness of art and thus had an enjoyable conversation limited only in my faculty with German. Though I will never know, I would like to think that some of the dirty Western image was made a little cleaner through our conversation. I know I can say that at least to some degree my understanding of her environment has been illuminated.

For geographical reasons more than anything else, we find a point of differentiation in the preparedness of the American student, then for instance the French student in Vienna. The French student with his living background of Austria will more readily find a media of communication. The American, not having this intuition, must call on a reserve of common traditional value. John Steinbeck recommended a good bottle of liquor for the purpose of removing the road block; I recommend an appreciation of the arts in addition to that bottle.

John C. Millonzi, '67
Vienna, Austria.

DEAR SIR:

I was a member of CBA, '58 and am at present a Field artillery advisor to a Republic of Vietnam artillery unit. My work has proved challenging and rewarding, though the unit is scattered throughout the III Corps area here in Vietnam. My letter is concerned with the civil affairs aspect of the current conflict. We, in addition to striving for victory on the field of battle, are engaged in a war to win "the hearts and minds" of the people of Vietnam.

Yesterday I visited the battalion headquarters at Go-Vap, just north of Saigon and had the opportunity to hand out some clothing to the families of some of the men that I advise. It was heartwarming to see the expressions of thanks conveyed in their eyes; they were most appreciative. However, with the small amount of clothing available, there was only enough for about twelve families, though there are many more scattered about the unit's tactical area that are in dire need for this type of assistance. Some of these children have but one piece of clothing which is worn every day, some of the smaller ones have nothing to wear at all.

To win the "hearts and minds" of these people, much more help is needed for the simple necessities of life. Being the father of three fine children, it hurts deeply to see most of these poor families striving to make good under such arduous conditions. As I remember what my old Jesuit professor of Ethics used to say, "Son, charity is the greatest virtue of all."

BOOKSHELF

In Face of Anguish by the Rev. Thomas R. Heath, O.P.
Sheed and Ward, N.Y., $4.50.

The problem of evil is man's major problem not the theist's alone. If the presence of evil in the world is irreconcilable with a Benevolent Deity, it is no more acceptable to reason in a mechanistic universe. Evil, in brief, is absurd — absurdity with the comic element drained off. One of the small advantages derived from it is its usefulness for philosophic reflection and for table talk and that of a profound sort for it puts one promptly at the heart of the matter — matter and anti-matter, good and evil.

Like a good Thomist, Father Heath outlines his purpose before he begins. "The evil in the world seems to contradict the goodness, even the existence, of God. That is the problem. But evil is more than a problem, it is a mystery. I have not intended to solve that mystery, but rather to put over against it the mystery of Jesus Christ who suffered, died and rose again from the dead. Christ won out over evil. His light shines on still in the darkness."

He continues: "The first part of the book has to do with the elements of darkness: in general (Chapter 1); pain and suffering in creation itself (Chapter 2); man's freedom (Chapter 3); which implies his power to turn against God (Chapter 4). The next part turns to the elements of light: how personal suffering can be good and how God brings good from evil (Chapter 5); how Christ is the supreme "good from evil" (Chapter 6); how joy is hidden in sadness (Chapter 7); how glory awaits the patience and love of this world (Chapter 8) and finally how we should respond to anguish and anxiety. The first appendix is something of a moral summary of the book; the second is a resume of books I have read while writing this one." There you have it.

Father Heath is a young man, born in Bedford in 1920, a B.S. from University Heights in 1943. He acknowledges the criticism advanced by a friend who told him that no one should write on the problem of evil unless he was "very old, had seen life, and had suffered much." On those scores, Father Heath acknowledges he does not qualify. But they are specious grounds or ancillary to the main requirements which are wide reading, personal observation, compassion for the frailty of man, empathy for the aspirations of contrary philosophic positions, a sense of literary style and the gift of wonder. These Fr. Heath has. His book is treatise as much as tract. With each chapter he provides extensive notes.

His speculations are existential in the sense that they take their rise from the literature of the day from Baldwin to Sarre, from Heidegger to Tillich, from Bellow to Bonhoeffer, from Pieper to Teilhard de Chardin, C.P. Snow to Gabriel Marcel. To exhaust the list would be to fill a page. He reads and remembers and draws one of his observations from lines of Felix Doherty taken from the anthology of Boston College poets. The book is meant for study as well as a single concerted perusal. Many of its observations are memorable: "The papacy, as an institution, lost its innocence just before the Great Western Schism." "Heaven is the absolute and super-abundant fulfillment of all the right tendencies, all the high aspirations of man." And as he says himself, "There is no ultimate solution to the problem of evil but surely these various insights help us."

When presented as maturely as they are here "In Face of Anguish," they do indeed.

HERBERT A. KENNY, '34

Within the framework of ecumenism, much has been written about the changes in the Church today. The editors have compiled below a few of the more important volumes for suggested reading on this current topic.

1. William Barauna (ed.), The Liturgy of Vatican II, 2 Vols., Franciscan Herald Press.

Fr. William J. Leonard, S.J., Chairman of Boston College's Department of Theology, is one of the contributors to this authoritative commentary on different aspects of the liturgy and its renewal based on the Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy.

2. The Jerusalem Bible in English, Doubleday & Co.

There is nothing in English to compare with this translation with explanatory notes and introductions to the various books of the Bible.

3. E. L. Mascall, The Secularization of Christianity, Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

In a detailed critique of Honest to God and The Secular Meaning of the Gospel, this learned theologian concludes that these tentative reconstructions are a sorry substitute for traditional Christianity.

4. C. J. McNaspy, S.J., Our Changing Liturgy.

An articulate guide to the continuing developments in Catholic worship and the reasons behind them.

5. Karl Rahner, S.J., The Church after the Council, Herder and Herder.

The most renowned of contemporary Catholic theologians offers three stimulating essays in response to the question, "How has the Vatican Council affected the personality and direction of the Church?"

6. Peter J. Riga, The Church Renewed, Sheed and Ward.

A brief but comprehensive survey of the important ideas in the Constitution on the Church and other Council documents. Practical applications to daily life.

7. E. Schillebeeckx, O.P., Marriage: Human Reality and Sacred Mystery. Sheed and Ward.

One of the Church's leading theologians offers in this first volume of a study which will eventually extend to several volumes, an investigation of the biblical view and historical development of marriage as an everyday human institution and grace-filled mystery of salvation.

8. Piet Smulders, S.J., The Design of Teilhard de Chardin, Newman.

A sympathetic critic of Teilhard evaluates his scientific and theological views in the light of traditional Catholic theology and outlines areas of possible integration.

9. John R. Willis, S.J., The Teachings of the Church Fathers, Herder and Herder.

The Dean of Arts and Sciences at Boston College has gathered into one volume the best English translations of important teachings of the Fathers of the Church. Comprehensive introductions and indexes enhance its value.

PARADE of CLASSES

'14 JOHN S. KEOHANE 1147 Tremont St., Boston

Bishop Eric F. MacKenzie is the new Episcopal Vicar for Norfolk County. We were pleased to hear recently that the Officers and Directors of the Rotary Club of Lawrence had voted to establish the John J. Hogan Rotary Scholarship, which will be awarded annually to a graduate of the Lawrence High School starting in 1967. The Scholarship Award will be in honor of John who for 43 years has been active in the Club. A Proclamation was issued by Mayor Daniel P. Kiley Jr., proclaiming June 16 "John J. Hogan Day," citing his numerous activities in the classroom, both as Teacher and Principal in the local schools and his work with the St. Vincent de Paul Society, St. Patrick's Charitable Aid Society, the Lawrence Boys' Club and other Youth Organizations.

Rev. David Twomey, O.S.B. has been in the Sacred Heart Hospital, Manchester, New Hampshire recovering from a broken hip and wrist, from which we understand he has completely recovered. He has our best wishes. Died September 15 at Hartford, Connecticut Pete McGrath's widow Mrs. Winvand. May her soul rest in peace. Her two sons are Alumni of the College. We regret to note the passing on October 8 of our loyal Classmate Rt. Rev. Msgr. Robert P. Barry, for 26 years Pastor of St. Clement's Parish, West Somerville and formerly for many years Director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau in Boston. A native of Newton, he came to us from Newton High School and immediately became affiliated with our activities. He was President of both the Marquette and Fulton Debating Societies and a member of the Fulton Intercollegiate Debating Team, a member of the Varsity Baseball Team and its Captain in his Senior year. In addition to other activities, he was a Commencement Speaker. He was awarded an Honorary Degree of Doctor of Literature by Boston College in 1941. The Officers of the Mass were: Rt. Rev. James H. Doyle '22, Pastor of St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, Celebrant, Rt. Rev. Christopher C. O'Neill '28, Pastor of St. Charles Church, Woburn, Deacon, Rev. Gerard Barry '46, Monsignor Barry's nephew, Sub-Deacon, Rt. Rev. Joseph F. Maguire '41 Master of Ceremonies and Rev. Matthew J. Coughlin, Assistant Master of Ceremonies. The eulogy was delivered by Bishop Eric F. MacKenzie. The Class was represented by William J. O'Sullivan of Concord, Dr. Francis Devlin of Chestnut Hill, Dr. Edward A. Sullivan of Harwich Port and John Keohane. May his soul rest in peace. He leaves two sisters to whom we extend our deep sympathy.

'15 PHILIP J. BOND 18 Houston Street, W. Roxbury

The class was saddened by the death of Father Henry M. Brock, S.J. of Weston College. Father Brock died at the age of 90 on September 8, 1966. He was the sole survivor of the faculty that taught the Class of 1915. He taught College Physics, a required junior year course, and an elective course in Calculus in our senior year. While at Weston he established a United States weather station and furnished the United States Geodetic Survey with calibrated geodetic measurements. Cardinal Cushing once described him as a scientist who was "absorbed in his work, having every instrument of his laboratory, who nevertheless gave his primary attention and first love as a teacher to the individual student." . . . Father Brock leaves a sister, Mrs. Cornelius Page, and a niece, Charlotte J. Page, a teacher of Foods in the William E. Russell School of the Boston System, both of West Roxbury.

John J. Walsh informs me that following surgery on both eyes he expects by the end of January to have 20/20 vision. His wife's return to good health encouraged him to endure the slow process of recovery. He will be driving his car by the middle of February. John's daughter, Mrs. John C. Bowen lives in Menlo Park, California, with her husband, a Shell Oil executive, and their four children. Right Reverend George S. Brennan, Pastor of St. James Parish, Arlington, has made a complete recovery from surgery and is now well and active.

Right Reverend James F. Grimes, formerly Pastor of the Blessed Sacrament parish, has been transferred to Nahant where he is completing a new church.

George Casey called from Hollywood recently, inquiring for news of the class. George informed me that his daughter, Patricia, Mrs. George N. Neise, a star of screen, stage and television, took the name Larna Thayer because of the long friendship of the family with the Thayers of Natick. William Thayer wrote "Casey at the Bat," "Mudville" in the poem ("There was no joy in Mudville") is on Snipe Island, the home of the Casey's.

Dr. John F. Bradley is busy these days taking care of the junior and senior citizens of Salem and vicinity. John has the distinction of being the first recipient of a diploma from St. John's Preparatory School of Danvers.

John A. Lahive is now in his third year of teaching at Newman Preparatory School following forty-eight years at Hyde Park High School. His major is English. John married Mary Kirby in 1925. John Junior graduated from Boston College and Boston College Law School. He is a patent lawyer. David is a graduate of Stonehill College and is a teacher-coach in the Hingham school system. Anne received her A.B. degree and her A.M. degree from Boston College. Mary and Joanne were secretaries. All are now married.

'16 JAMES L. O'BRIEN 41 Pond Circle, Jamaica Plain

The class held its annual dinner at the Parker House on December 3, 1966. Sixteen members were present and it is interesting to note that ten members are still active in their professions.

Leo Gallagher and his wife were recently in Rome where they had luncheon with Father "Bill" Murphy who is a delegate to the two, month long General Chapter meeting of the Jesuits.

Leo Daley has gone to his winter home in Florida, Bill Carney, Pat Donovan and Art Gormley will soon join him.

In January Ed McCarthy will be off on another safari. He had planned to go to Australia and New Zealand but he couldn't get reservations. Gerry McCarthy looks fine and has apparently recovered from his heart attack. George Keough is now in his 20th year in the financial department of Stone and Webster. The work agrees with him as he is one of the most youthful looking members of the class. Harold Fleming is quite a raconteur and is living up to the high standards set by our previous President Fred Gillis. Dr. Heffernan has written his memoirs. They are reserved for his family. Wouldn't it be wonderful if he enlarged upon them and made them available to the public. Kindly remember in your prayers, Father Dalton's father and our beloved teacher Father Brock.

'17 THOMAS D. CRAVEN 107 Barrett Street, Needham

The June issue of "Sunrise," the infant New England Sports Magazine, gives a hand to Porky Flynn for a play that he made in the BC-Red Sox game in 1916. Tim Cohan, Editor, quoted Nat Hasenfus as follows: "Porky Flynn of the Eagles turned in the play of the game by taking Harry Hooper's smash off the right field fence and nailing the great outfielder at third base." All we oldtimers recall that Hooper was a first-ball hitter, and this double off the fence was the first ball pitched to Bill Carrigan's club that was to win the world series in 1916.

Msgr. Albert J. Shea, retired pastor of St. James Church, Boston, passed away in Holy Ghost Hospital on October 18 after a lengthy illness. For 24 years after his ordination he had served that parish as an assistant priest. For eight years he was pastor in parishes out of town. Returning in 1954 as pastor to St. James Parish, on the edge of Boston's Chinatown, was just what pleased him most. He will be sincerely missed by all who knew him because everyone was his friend. The solemn high requiem Mass brought people from all walks of life who crowded the church. The eulogy by Bishop Riley touched every heart. Fifteen members of the class under the leadership of John Flynn paid their last respects to one they loved very much. The sympathy of the class is extended to his sister, Eileen, his sole survivor, who visited him daily for almost two years. May he rest in peace.

Fr. Frank Caffrey, M.M. has extended Christmas Greetings from Los Angeles to all members of the class. He wanted to know if any one has visited Silk O'Laughlin at St. John of God Hospital. So far as we know Mike Hickey is the only one to visit him. Silk has been hospitalized for several years.

Fr. Joe Merrick, S.J. in Baghdad asks about the plans for our 50th anniversary. He sent Christmas Greetings to all. During the over thirty years of service in Baghdad he has been home once or twice for brief periods.

Bo Mahoney reports that son, Roland, M-Sgt., USAF, is in Saigon. His family is at home in Indiana.

Diker Hoefling, who has not been in our midst since our 25th anniversary, writes from his Mesa, Arizona, retirement estate that he hopes to be with us for the 50th. After moving around the country for Allied Chemical he managed the San Francisco office and trained personnel for sales positions. The dry climate of Arizona provided the lure which attracted him to settle in Apache Country Club Estates. Here he organized the community and among other things writes a weekly column for the Apache Sentinel. He informs us that the class baby, now Mrs. Rita Callahan of Roslyn Heights, N.Y. will be a grandmother shortly. We look forward to seeing you, Diker, in June.

John Flynn announces that the program for observing our 50th anniversary "is in the process of being finalized." He will make contact shortly with the members of the class.

With the kind indulgence of the editors of this publication your scribe feels that some brief account should be passed on to those who never heard of the Lake Street Car, our only means of transportation to the Heights from the city 50 years ago, so that they may understand what nostalgic emotions those of us of 1917 feel in 1967.

We were the first freshman class to attend classes on the new campus in 1913. There were 112 of us. We came mostly from B.C. High, Boston Latin, Cambridge Latin, Brookline High and Newton High. We had some from Revere, Lynn, Salem and Lowell to the North; Natick, Framingham and Holliston to the West; Brockton, Rockland, Abington and even Plymouth to the South. To many of us some of these were far away places because we had to depend on public transportation. Few of the families represented by the collegians at the Heights had autos at that time.

There was one building, the Tower, now known as Gasson Hall. Fr. Gasson had just been succeeded by Fr. Lyons. In 1917, our last year, St. Mary's Hall was opened. The faculty, living in town, had to be transported back and forth by what we facetiously called "the fresh air taxi".

Almost everything that happened in those days was a "first". Beginning in 1913 the football team played an all college schedule under Hiker Joy as coach. In 1916, under Charley Brickley as coach and Capt. Maurice Dullea, BC defeated Holy Cross for the first time in almost two decades 17-14. On that day, after the game, for the first time the Boston evening papers had special editions on the streets with front page headlines announcing the victory. (Therein lies an interesting story) Boston College was beginning to make front page news.

In the spring of 1917, after the Declaration of War, over 100 Boston College students made applications for admission to the Plattsburgh OTC—one was accepted. The Heights was rocked with indignation and resentment. Your scribe with the aid and encouragement of older loyal alumni bombarded the newspapers and official Washington. The late Mayor Curley of Boston was most helpful in his support of our contention. Front page news again with editorials demanding an investigation. We found that we had friends.

Of the 112 who entered as freshmen in 1913 ninety-two were graduated in 1917. Those who withdrew were largely those who entered religious seminaries. Fifty-eight members of the class enlisted in the various branches of the armed forces in WWI. Some of these had previous enlistments in the National Guard. Navy seaplane pilot Lt. Charles Ostridge was lost in a crash off Chatham, Mass. shortly after the war.

The fields of activity in later life of the ninety-two graduates may be interesting: Business (all branches) 37, religion 17, education 14, law 9, medicine and dentistry 7, government 5, journalism 2, military 1.

There are 37 living of the 92 graduates. Of those who did not complete the four years there are 13 living.

Space does not permit the enumerating of further details but suffice it to say that there is more to be told about the first freshman class which entered the new campus in 1913 and the surprise that awaits those who have not seen the development at the Heights in recent years.

'18 M. FRANCIS NOLAN
17 So. Normandy Avenue
Cambridge, Mass. 02138

The Class extends its sympathy to the family of James Crowdie who died in Buffalo this past July. Jim received his masters in Science at Canisius and later earned a doctorate at Fordham. A teacher at Canisius for over 40 years, he was chairman of the chemistry department for 36 years and was also graduate manager of athletics until 1953. In addition to his teaching and athletic interests, Jim also founded the "Griffin", the college newspaper, the DiGamma Honor Society and the Canisius Chess Club of which he was moderator for many years.

Your correspondent enters yet another plea to get the members of '18 to drop him a line with some news for his column.

'19 FRANCIS J. ROLAND
10 Homewood Road, W. Roxbury

Father Leo N. O'Day, pastor of St. Lawrence Parish, in Brookline, is one of our most loyal football rooters — in attendance at every home game. Hope springs eternal!

Chris Garrahan is rapidly recovering from a bout with pneumonia.

Only one member of the class appeared with his Mrs. at the Victory (2) Party on the eve of the Cross game. He was the oldest member of the Geritol group in attendance — until John Curley, class of 1913 appeared.

St. Joseph's Parish, Belmont, is enjoying his well earned retirement.

Your scribe is again asking, soliciting, requesting, pleading and demanding that the members of the class send notes of their goings-on, the activities of their children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. Such memoranda will be appreciated.

'20 J. ROBERT BRAWLEY
33 Pomfret St., West Roxbury

Over two-thirds of the remaining members of the class responded to the notices of the annual reunion last October and while all could not attend they promised to be on hand, God willing, at our Golden Jubilee in 1970. On hand and enjoying the wonderful catered meal at Alumni Hall were our class Chaplain Monsignor John Lane, John Connors, Forrest Levis, Ray Kiley, Joe Joyce, Art Robertie, Duke Wellings, Tom Gately, Dan Lucy, Bob Pyne, Frank Earls, John Morrow, Jack Sheehan, Paul Troy, Judge Shamon, Gerry O'Neil, Bob Brawley and Bob O'Connell. Monsignor Dan McCabe's duties forced him to a late cancellation and hospitalization kept us from enjoying Father Russ Haley's witticisms. A late change in plans kept Fred Donaher from coming up from Roanoke, Virginia. When Ed Crowley couldn't make it he got together with Leo Aicardi, Neil O'Connor and Neil's guest in October, our Eddie Higgins and the four of them held an impromptu reunion in Florida on the same date as ours.

Some mixed signals kept Joe White from being with us after his long siege of illness but we'll get him back next time.

The sympathy of the class is extended to our loyal and hard-working Charlie McGill on the death in October of his beloved wife, Colette.

John Linehan is still working for Uncle Sam in Washington and Phil Mackey came out of retirement and is teaching in the Boston Adult Program nights at the J. E. Burke School. Johnny Maloney is enjoying a well earned vacation following his retirement from the U. S. Postal Service.

'21 JEREMIAH W. MAHONEY
86 Moss Hill Road, Jamaica Plain

We regret to announce the death on December 22, 1966 of Dr. Francis Quinlan, who was a professor for many years at St. Michael's College, Winoski, Vermont. We talked with him on the telephone a couple of years ago while soliciting gifts for the Development Fund and he appeared to be very happy in his work.

Recent Retirees include Father Jim Donovan, Henry Ford, who retired this June from the Boston School System, and Morgan Ryan.

No retirement, however, for Father John Donnelly, O.M.I., who for many years has been flying all over the Eastern Seaboard, giving missions and retreats. Father John pays frequent visits to Arthur McCarthy in Philadelphia while engaged in his mission duties. He is based at the Provincial House on Moraine Street, Jamaica Plain, the home of former Governor Curley.

'22 NATHANIEL J. HASENFUS
15 Kirk St., West Roxbury

On this, our 45th anniversary year, President Monsignor James Doyle has appointed William Sheehan and William Cauty co-chairmen of our anniversary year committee. Watch for these two to come up with a great program. There is only one of our former professors still at B.C., the personable Father John O'Connell who is still active. . . . News of the clan is very scanty, and what there is, is both good and bad. First, John Norton has retired from his professorial position at the Heights and has taken over new duties as Chairman of the Language Arts Division at Massasoit Community College in North Abington. Paul Duffy is at home in Canton and would appreciate calls from classmates. Bernard Farrell has retired from his work at Raytheon. . . . Henry Foley has left the sylvan atmosphere of Jamaica Plain and has moved in town.

On the sad side are the death of three men who were with us at B.C. or at B.C. High. Leonard Healy passed away on December 4 at his home on Cape Cod. Len was one of the best of all, a loyal son of B.C. who sent his two sons to the Heights and who was a faithful and generous follower of everything Boston College. Even from the Cape he attended hockey and football games, was seen at all class affairs, and was an ideal alumnus. His Leonard G. Healy Engraving Company was very successful. Len is survived by his wife, two sons, and three daughters. The second classmate to pass away was John Egan, affectionately known as "Miah." He is survived by Mrs. Egan and several sons and daughters. At the time of his death, he was Chairman of the Massachusetts Real Estate Board, a position to which he was appointed by ex-Governor Furcolo and which he has held with distinction. The third who has gone to his reward was Redmond Hanlon who was with us at B.C. High, but later attended Suffolk Law School. Redmond retired a short time ago from the postal service. All three men were real friends of 1922.

Ben Healy, hockey player extraordinary, has moved from Chicago to San Diego, California, where he says winters will be milder. I see by the B.C. hockey program, that his team-mate, goalie Ed O'Brien, is listed as having three shutouts in 1921. Tom Mahan and his wife spent the Christmas holidays in Europe, mainly in Italy and Spain. Tom is a valued member of the Newman School administrative staff. He recently visited Father Daniel Scully and received a royal reception. Father Frank Morrissey married my son, Richard, to Christina Shannon of Bangor at St. Mary's in Bath, Maine, in November, in a very beautiful ceremony.

Frank Daly has had a very pleasant letter from Al Chapman and his wife Aiko, inviting Frank to visit him for a winter vacation at their home in Saint Thomas, V.I. Al would like to hear from men of 1922.

See you at all our reunion meetings.

By the time the News reaches your homes, the New Year will be well under way, but still not too late to wish you all a very Happy, Healthy and Prosperous New Year.

Fr. Norbert McInnis and Fr. Tom Lane contacted your secretary, and although they didn't have any special news for you they both extended their best wishes for a very Happy, and healthy New Year.

Al Bedard and Dr. Joe Delaney spent Thanksgiving together — They have been doing this for the past twenty-five years.

Joe Delaney was up in these parts recently visiting his brother. Joe is President elect of the New York County Medical Association and will be President in May. Congratulations Joe. His two grandchildren will be here in May for a visit. Also, Joe has just moved his office to 60th Street in New York City.

Ted Garrity and his wife recently returned from a trip to Ireland.

Al Schmitz who is retired and has been living in St. Louis for many years was back in Cambridge visiting his family this fall. He is doing very well and enjoying his retirement.

Gaynor Wellings and his wife had a glorious trip and cruise to Italy, Spain, Greece, and back to the States via Halifax to New York.

Walter Dimmock and Gaynor Wellings ran into Owen Gallagher recently, and Owen seemed very well. Later on Owen visited with Gaynor and his wife and they had a lovely evening together.

Joe Sweeney has had a bout with pneumonia but has recovered fully—We hope his health is very much improved.

Also on the sick list has been Myles McSweeney. Myles had a bad heart attack in October, and spent several weeks in the hospital. However he is home again and improving steadily. We hope he will be out and around again very shortly. Your secretary spent Thanksgiving with Myles and his lovely family.

Walter Dimmock retired as of December 31st from the Estate Tax Division of the Division of Internal Revenue, with which he has been associated for several years.

We've had news of illness of some of our classmates, which we are sorry to relate, but feel you would want to know about: Bernie Loftus suffered a coronary attack, and is now recuperating in Florida—Hope the warm weather helps a lot.

Also, Luke Supple, who is retired from the Boston Globe had a serious attack and has gone down to Fort Charlotte for the winter. Hope that basking in the sun will help a great deal.

From Joe Crane we hear that young Hughie is in his second year at Harvard College, having made the Dean's List last year—Ellen is at Font Bonne Academy and Peter at St. Mary of the Hills' School.

Bill Duffy, who is superintendent of the Public Works Department of North Andover attended the convention held at Lake Placid, at which he was elected to honorary life membership in the organization in recognition of his work in establishing the association's scholarship program in 1956 and his continuing chairmanship of the scholarship committee in promoting interest and education in the water works field. Bill is one of only 20 men in the United States and Europe so honored by the New England Association. He also received a similar honor in 1965 from American Water Works Association. Congratulations Bill.

Al Lashway retired from the Connecticut School for boys and went out to California to live. However, Al came back to Vermont for the summer where he suffered a heart attack and he and his wife are now back in Meriden, Connecticut where Al is in a Rest Home. God speed your recovery Al—We are all in there pitching for you.

Fr. Patrick Collins is now located at 300 Newbury St. and is Spiritual Counselor for the School of St. Phillip Neri for Delayed Vocations at 126 Newbury St. in Boston.

Louis Tracy is a lecturer at Northeastern University—giving a course for Administration in Rehabilitation in the Graduate School.

This is becoming an Obituary column instead of a chronicle of activities. If we lose a few more key members, the class of '25 will have to open branch offices in the regions of the hereafter — above and below.

A portion of the heart and spirit of our class passed away on October 26th, 1966 when Ralph Good died after a protracted illness. He had served for years as the voluntary custodian of our class list of deceased members and was the moving spirit behind our Communion breakfasts. He was ever present at committee meetings or class gatherings, and evidenced constant loyalty and devotion to affairs of Alma Mater. Survived by his wife, Grace, son Ralph Jr., James a brother, and three grandchildren, Ralph will ever remain beloved in our memories.

Word was received in late September that classmate Donald F. Connelly, at 84 Oak St., Willimantic, Connecticut, died on December 9, 1965 after an illness of many months.

Many will recall that "Don" was the Advertising Manager for our Sub Turri, and one of his early jobs after graduation was as a hotel clerk where he often had the pleasure of booking in some of his classmates. Don's home address was the same as that when he was a student, and like the late Joe Gavan and others who have passed away recently, it is interesting to note that they resided at one address for over 40 years. Don was a popular member of our class in student days, but, of course, we did not see him often thereafter as he was out of Massachusetts. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Noreen B. Connelly.

On December 18, the other Arthur (the one with the brains), Monsignor Arthur J. Riley, Pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Quincy, was tendered a testimonial banquet at the Surf Ballroom, Nantasket Beach. The occasion was "Pat's" 35th Anniversary of Ordination. Hundreds of friends, admirers and more than 400 parishioners attended, coming by sleds, skis, and puns to join the sea gulls, hanging around awaiting the melting of the ice. The guest of honor received a generous gift to help cover the cost of recent doctors and hospital bills, travel expenses and a bit for charity. Left over souvenir books may be obtained at the Rectory. "Ad Multos Annos" Art.

Classmates elected to the newly organized Diocesan Senate of Priests are the Right Reverend Monsignors Ralph Gallagher and Joseph Burke.

Judge Anthony Julian reports that Dom Placid, O.S.B. (John Corney) was home from New Mexico, for a day, to attend the tural of his brother in November.

Our former classmate Marty Griffin sent us a note enclosing a newspaper photograph of Dr. James E. Tobin '25, the newly appointed Dean of Queens College School of General Studies at Jamaica, L.I., New York. Jim joined the Queens College staff in 1948 as a member of the English Department faculty, was named director of the School of General Studies in 1962. Since then, the school has increased in enrollment from 7,622 to 11,000 students. He is a noted author of anthologies, poetry and critical studies of 18th Century English literature. He is also board chairman of the Catholic Poetry Society of America and the author of the "Dictionary of Catholic Biography."

Joe Kozlowski was operated on for an old knee injury at Sancta Maria Hospital early in December, then ordered to lose fifty pounds because of a blood pressure condition. He is now weighing efforts to model teen age clothes for Brooks Brothers.

Saw William Tobin on Channel 4 news TV in December relative to court case of Boston School Committee on constitutionality of racial imbalance law in Suffolk Superior Court.

Saw Al Hyland, Gene Giroux, Dan Lynch and Judge Julian at the Clover Club Dinner December 3rd.

Dr. John Edward Collins, Jr., son of our John E. (President of Newman School) and the late Mrs. Collins, was married in September to Miss Yvonne Lorraine Reynolds of Gorham, Maine at the Cathedral in Portland, Me. A reception was held at Crescent Beach Inn, Cape Elizabeth, Me. Mrs. Joseph Harrington, Andover, sister of the bridegroom was matron of honor. Walter Collins, Foxboro, was his brother's best man. Ushers were Dr. Wesley English, Cape Elizabeth, and Dr. Lawrence Bohan, Kittery, Me.

The bride attended Ricker and Boston State Colleges. Dr. Collins is a graduate of Boston Latin School, Boston College, and Tufts University School of Medicine. He is a resident in orthopedic surgery at the New England Medical Center Hospital, Boston.

The children of Dr. and Mrs. Jim Conway held a surprise party for their parents recently and gave them plane tickets for Peru, where a daughter, Sister Mary Pedro, S.M.S.M., a Marist nun, is located. Of course the trip and visit was a happy one for all concerned. Sister Pedro is teaching in Callas, Peru, an area of deep poverty. While Jim and Mary were there an extensive flood took place to add to their "once in a lifetime" experience. Leave taking was difficult as would be expected, but eased some by having witnessed the joyous missionary zeal and dedication of their daughter. Think of Jim and Mary the next time a few days go by without a call from one of your children.

26 WILLIAM J. CUNNINGHAM
186 Lakeshore Road, Brighton

Greetings, old friends. We have to announce with regret the death of Eddie Barnes last month, in Plymouth, where he had retired to the Real Estate business with his wife. Ed had been a Guidance Counselor in the Boston Schools. We had studied together for the Boston exams, in the early thirties. Our sympathies to his wife. Had a most pleasant trip with Tom Coakley, along with other Boston School people, early in October; Capt. John Sullivan, USNR, and B.C. '27 led a group on a trip through the Naval Academy. We flew out of Weymouth, were well fed and housed and saw the complete facilities of our Academy on the Severn. Only this week, saw Coak and Jodey Hughes, both principals of schools, as they were interviewing candidates for admission to the Boston system; they are both well.

Sat with Doc Art Gorman at one of the home football games this fall and the Doc is still in great voice, altho nowhere as loud as at a hockey game; also saw Bob Daley at one of the losses. Oh, well — wait 'til next year. We have had no news of our annual dinner yet, but hang on and it'll come to you; perhaps this one also can be intown, which appeared to be more accessible for the greatest number. Had the pleasure of a sociable evening this week with John Dorsey and Mae as well as John Dooley and Anna; we were perhaps a bit boisterous but we did manage to settle most of the world's Major Problems. They didn't look quite so completely settled, in the cold light of the next day, however. Rose and I have made the large step of selling the West Roxbury home and we've moved into a most attractive apartment in Towne Estates, opposite the Seminary in Brighton; we have only Rosemary left at home and she's a senior at Framingham State. Our Bill, '57, has just been promoted to Zone Manager for Burroughs in the Hartford area and has brought a handsome new home in Wapping.

We do bump into Art Murray regularly, at Kiwanis meetings in the West Roxbury area. We threaten regularly to play golf but never quite get around to it as both Art and brother George are so busy operating the funeral homes in Roxbury, Jamaica Plain and West Roxbury and doing so well. Needed about retiring, as so many of the brethren are doing, Art assures us that he's a long way from it. He met Frank Colbert recently and found that Frank's four children are at school in France, with John and young Mike studying at Compiegne and the two girls, Nancy and Pauline at school at St. Gervais. Frank and Mrs., a French gal as I recall, sent the kids checks for Christmas and were a little astonished to get a transatlantic telegram "Checks unsigned; no good. Send money", from John and Mike.

Wish we had more news but if you don't give it to me, I can't pass it on. Note the new address at masthead, if you have an item.

Congratulations to Charlie Schroeder on his appointment as Coordinator of Personnel Relations of the Boston Public School System.

'27 JOHN J. BUCKLEY
20 Dell Ave., Hyde Park, Mass.

The first event to celebrate the Fortieth Anniversary of Graduation was the annual Christmas Dinner held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 28, 1966, at Alumni Hall. Forty-one members of the Class were present to recall old times and renew old friendships. Toastmaster Bill Ohrenberger with his wit and wisdom controlled the flow of oratory which ranged from the practical to the visionary. Present were: President Francis X. Sullivan, Treasurer John Toomey, Dinner Chairman Jack Buckley, Fr. Martin Harney, S.J., Fr. James Geary, S.J., Msgr. Walter Leach, Msgr. J. Joseph Ryan, Fr. Joseph W. Sullivan, Fr. Joseph McCall, Fr. James Norville, Walter Waldron, Luke McCloskey, Howard Buckley, Dr. Frank Moran, Dr. Tim Lyons, Joe Hopkinson, Jim O'Leary, John Cavanaugh, Dan O'Leary, Marty Davis, Bob Sullivan, Frank Regan, Tom O'Keefe, Tom Heffernan, John E. Sullivan, Jim Cotter, Dan O'Connell, John Eaton, Dr. John Carroll, Dr. John Cicchetti, Joe McKenney, Joe Ingoldby, Vin O'Connell, Martin Tierney, Tom Murphy, Tom Coughlan, Ray Finnegan, Jack Duane, Jack Conway, and Tom Keefe.

We regret to announce the deaths in the past few months of classmates John Higgins, Ray O'Donnell, and Gus Whelan. Remember these men in your prayers.

Bill Ohrenberger, Superintendent of the Boston Public Schools, exercised rare judgment in appointing Joe McKenney to the important school position of Associate Superintendent in charge of personnel.

Rev. John F. Feeney, pastor of Sts. Peter and Paul Church in South Boston, is a member of the newly organized Senate of the priests of the archdiocese.

Dr. John Carroll, Superintendent of the Mass. Hospital School, was a speaker recently at the dedication of the new Nils V. Nelson Building on the hospital grounds, named after Boston's own "Swede" Nelson. According to Swede, everybody's favorite, an Episcopalian is a Catholic who flunked Latin.

Dr. Dan O'Leary's son James recently passed the state Bar exam.

Last September Fr. Bernard Fiekers, S.J. baptized his grand-nephew, Kurt Richard Vogel, at St. Joseph's Church in Salem.

Joe Aleckna retired in the past year after thirty years of service with the Federal Internal Revenue Service.

Walter Waldron's son, Rev. Walter Waldron, Jr., is stationed as curate in a Beverly parish.

Dr. Tim Lyons' oldest son was married during the year. Tim has only three of his children still going to college.

Dr. Frank Moran is the proud grandfather of two.

Fr. Joseph W. Sullivan, former chaplain at Concord and of the Cambridge Police Dept., is pastor of St. James Church, Wellesley.

John Cavanaugh is quietly boasting of his six grandchildren.

Msgr. Joe Ryan, Vice-Rector of St. John's Seminary and professor of Medieval Studies at Toronto U., announces that for the first time in over fifty years a new Catholic Encyclopedia will be published soon.

Among the six foster children of Fr. Joe McCall, one is the Vice-Provincial of the Brothers of the Holy Cross.

Tom Heffernan is flattered by the presence of three teachers in the family, all following in the old man's footsteps, one at Queen's College, New York; another at University of Bristol, England; and the patriotic one in the Boston school system.

Tom O'Keefe has four children married. One of his sons is a Navy officer on duty in Viet Nam. Another son is on his way to the same scene. The O'Keefes go where the action is.

Frank Regan is pleased to have his son with him in his business, the Regan Motor Company, Haverhill. Another son is attending medical school.

Fr. Jim Normile, after twenty-two years' service as chaplain with the Air Force, is pastor of St. Mary's Parish, Georgetown.

Jim Cotter has retired as Headmaster of Chelsea High School.

Dan O'Connell has retired as Assistant Headmaster of Dorchester High School.

One daughter of Marty Davis is serving in Madrid with the State Department. Another of Marty's daughters is teaching school in Weymouth.

Martin Tierney's daughter, Anne, will graduate in June from the University of Massachusetts. Another daughter, a commissioned Navy nurse, is seeking a higher degree at Boston State.

Now living in Florida are Col. Leo Keefe, Charley Hayden, and Ed Richardson.

Jack Buckley's son, James, lately of Maryknoll, is attending specialist school in the Army. Son Charles after two years with the Army in Panama is attending Stonehill College. Daughter Margaret is a Sophomore at U.Mass, Boston. Son Joe, completing three years as professor of Math at Dartmouth, will be at U.Mass, Amherst, in the fall.

Next event on the calendar will be the Fortieth Year Family Communion Breakfast for the men and their wives, children, and grandchildren.

GEORGE DONALDSON, Secy.
30 Blackman Rd., Canton, 02021

The prayers and sympathy of the class are extended to Tom Conroy whose wife Marie died suddenly last May and to Mike Dee whose wife died in April and to the family of Dr. Phil Shea who died in late October and to Dr. Bernie Daly's wife and son, Bernard Jr., a pre-medical senior at Fairfield University.

Will it be proper to say "Monsignor Senator" to Msgr. Frank McElroy and Msgr. Joe Regan, who were recently elected to the Boston Archdiocesan Senate of Priests? All good wishes.

Father Ned Hogan, S.J., teaching Theology at Gonzaga-in-Florence, Italy, spent Christmas in the Holy Land. Father Joe Connell, S.J. sends his best for Christmas and 1967 to all the "grand" 29ers from Al-Hikma University, Baghdad, Iraq, as does Fr. Fred Hobbs from St. Zepherin's in Cochinuate. Met Msgr. Frank McDonnell at a wedding in his nicely remodelled Sacred Heart Church in Lynn, and Fr. Tom Fay, S.J. on the steps of the Immaculate Conception in the South End.

Our October 19th dinner at Alumni Hall was very pleasant but it was not our 37th. Frank Hussey writes from 38 Church St., Cossackie, N.Y.: "Bud Mason and I held the first '29 Class dinner as Freshmen at the University Club, with Fr. O'Brien, S.J., history prof. as guest of honor." Thanks Frank for setting '29 record straight. Wednesday night was chosen particularly for our priests and doctors, and a good response resulted. October was approved as better than Spring or Winter, by a vote, so hope

B. C. CLUB NEWS

DOWNTOWN CLUB

One of the final steps in the formation of the Boston College Downtown Club was recently completed when the Club received its charter from Secretary of State Kevin White at the State House. The Club has been organized with a threefold purpose: (1) to acquire in the near future, a facility in the downtown area to serve the business, social and recreational needs of the Alumni who work in the Metropolitan area, (2) to allow an opportunity for alumni to gather in their own quarters to discuss and pursue ideas of mutual interest and (3) to serve as a dynamic and unified force of alumni to assist Boston College in all its efforts and plans, especially in its services to the community. An intensive membership drive is now underway, highlighted by the mailing of the Club brochure, describing its functions and containing an application for charter membership. Further information may be obtained by calling either Andrew Aloisi, Secretary-Clerk at 289-2015 or Fred Haynes, Treasurer at 235-1295.

WASHINGTON

Friday evening, February 24 marks the next event on the Club calendar, when Coach Bob Cousy and his fine basketball team will play at Georgetown. This will be the first meeting between Coach Cousy and his former assistant Jack Magee, now head coach at Georgetown, and it promises to be an excellent game. The Club will sponsor a reception following the game to honor Cousy and the squad, details of which will soon be sent to the club membership. Other events on schedule are the Laetare Sunday Communion breakfast on March 5 and the annual Congressional Night in May.

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

The West Coast alumni were honored on January 18 by a visit from Very Rev. Michael P. Walsh, S.J., B.C. President. Club President Frank O'Neill is to be congratulated for the fine arrangements made for the reception, held in the Portola Room of the Presidio Officers Club. The club reports a successful season which began with a winery tour and picnic at the Weibel Champagne Vineyards and on December 28, the club hosted a Christmas Dinner Dance at the Presidio. Frank O'Neill requests that all alumni in the area contact him at EX 2-4684 or Maureen O'Neill at 592-0509 to be sure that they are on the club roster to receive information on coming events.

WORCESTER COUNTY

At the annual business meeting, the following new officers were elected: Robert Trevisani, President; Francis K. Murphy, Vice President; John McGill, Treasurer and Mrs. Mildred McDonald, Secretary. Msgr. Timothy P. O'Connell was re-elected honorary chairman of the board of directors. Directors elected for 4 years were Joe O'Brien, Bob Maher, Edna Macewicz and Dr. Bob Blute; for 3 years: Tom Carey, Dr. Fred McCready, Bill Masterson and Bob Fouhy; for 2 years: Dr. Dick Broggi, Paul Cunningham, Bill Hannon and Jim Queenan, Jr.; for 1 year: Frank Sanning, Fr. Ambrose Mahoney and Ed Mingolla. The club sponsored a night at the B.C.-Colby hockey game on January 14, complete with bus trip and dinner. President Trevisani announces that the first Wednesday luncheons will resume at Putnam & Thurston's on February 1st.

NEW JERSEY

Activities for the year commenced with a large representation attending the post game reception at the Inn of the Four Falls following the Villanova game. At the first business meeting of the year, the new slate of officers was chosen as follows: Ed Gaudette, President; Phil McGinn, Vice President; Pat Cahill, Treasurer and Elaine Vetri, Secretary. Trustees named are Hon. William Considine, Garrett Connolly, Phil Larkin and Jim O'Brien. The congratulations of the Club are extended to former President Joe Cotter, who was appointed a Director of the Alumni Association. On January 31, the Club sponsored a reception for Coach Bob Cousy and the basketball team following the Seton Hall game, at the K. of C. Hall in South Orange, with Pat Cahill acting as Chairman for the event.

LOS ANGELES

One of Los Angeles' famous restaurants, the Boardroom, was the scene of a reception to Fr. Michael P. Walsh, B.C. President, on the occasion of his visit to the city in January. President Dan Finnegan and his committee did their usual excellent job in arranging for this affair.

PHILADELPHIA

President Paul Duffey has announced that the club will honor Coach Cousy and the squad at a reception in Philadelphia on February 8th, following the St. Joseph's game at the Palestra. Despite the result of the Villanova game, over 200 club members and friends attended the post game party at the Inn of the Four Falls.

SPRINGFIELD

Joseph A. Cancelliere

Betty's Towne House in Agawam was the scene of the annual Rector's Reception sponsored by the Springfield B.C. Club, held on January 25. Fr. Walsh spoke of the problems facing Boston College in the future and brought the members up-to-date on the plans and progress at University Heights. President Joe Cancelliere, George Keefe and Dan Keyes hosted an excellent turn-out of Alumni from the area.

RHODE ISLAND

Two events marked the opening of the club season: Under Chairman Jack Flanagan a Sports Night was held at Johnson's Hummocks with Coach John McCauley as guest speaker, and on January 21, Chairman Leo Scholfield hosted a fine dinner dance at the Metacommet Country Club. Other scheduled events are the Laetare Sunday Communion breakfast, Bill Morro and Al DiRobbio, Co-chairmen and the women's Spring Fashion Show, Mary Conneely, Chairman.

CONNECTICUT

Alumni from all sections of the state will look forward this Spring to visits from Very Rev. Michael P. Walsh, S.J., President of the University. A new club is in the process of formation in the Fairfield County area and expects to make its first event a reception for Fr. Walsh.

All alumni of the state will be notified in the near future of the final details of the receptions in connection with Father's visits. In December, Wally Boudreau, Executive Director of the Alumni Association narrated the football films of the Boston College-Holy Cross game for the Fairfield County alumni.

OLD COLONY

In November another successful Monte Carlo night, termed "A Night at Harold's" was held for the benefit of the scholarship fund. At the annual dinner dance, the newly elected slate of officers was introduced to the gathering: A. Chester Lalli, President; Dick Hopkins and Bob Caffrey, vice presidents; Frank McGrory, Treasurer; re-elected were Margaret and Agnes Keohane as Recording and Corresponding secretaries and Dick Smillie, immediate past president. Representing club districts, Directors were named for these areas: Braintree: Don Hebert, and John Vozzella; Brockton: Charles Butler, John Condon, Gerry Faherty, John Linehan, John McCarthy, Tom Murphy, Fred Sullivan and John Svagzys; Canton: John Davey, George Donaldson and Joe Murphy; Mattapan: Dennis Hassan; Milton: Paul O'Sullivan; Quincy: David Donoghue; Randolph: John Courtney and Dick Earley; Sharon: Lloyd McDonald; Stoughton: Jim Bryant, John Driscoll and Joe Loughnane and Weymouth: Frank Tully. Any alumnus in the South Shore area may contact any of the above officers or directors for more information on club activities.

Director, Sports Publicity

Basketball:

As the 1966-1967 Winter program at the Heights rapidly approached the half-way mark, Boston College's major sport entries were doing all right for themselves.

Bob Cousy's basketball team had lost just one game by just two points and Captain Willie Walters of Brooklyn, N.Y., B.C.'s top rebounder.

Snooks Kelley's hockey team was performing much better than a team in a "rebuilding" year is supposed to.

In fact, we strongly suspect that you'll be seeing both of them in post-season tournaments come March.

exams the Eagles open on the road against Seton Hall (January 31) and close on the road against Holy Cross (March 4). In between those two are sandwiched eight games in the stretch drive month of February. Fortunately, five of these are at Roberts Center, including the big one against Providence on Saturday, February 18 and other key contests against Holy Cross, Fordham and Canisius.

Coach Bob Cousy — enjoying his best year yet — now has upped his record to 65 wins against 24 losses for a percentage of .730. His fourth Eagle squad is his best. They have height, speed, scoring power, rebounding strength, solid defense, and perhaps most important of all, a strong bench. more than rebuilding in a so-called "re-building" season. His 31st Eagle hockey team stood 9 wins and 4 losses with one big Harvard game remaining just before the exam break. We'll take all bets that Snooks and his Eagles will be making their sixth appearance in the 8 team Eastern Championship playoffs come March!

Snooks has pushed his amazing record up to 412 wins against only 179 losses and 14 ties. Looking ahead to the second half of play, February is again the big month, and as with the basketball team, Bill Flynn seems to have scheduled the toughest foes at the Heights to make that stretch drive a little easier. The big ones in hockey will be Cornell on February 1 and St. Lawrence on February 10 with the annual Beanpot Tournament set at the Garden on February 6 and 13.

Future forward threat, Charles Toczylowski, son of Sugar Bowl great Monk, has shown great speed on the line for the freshman squad.

Captain Jerry York has been outstanding thus far. His linemates, Bob Kupka and Whitey Allan, make Boston College's final wave one of the best in college hockey. The second line of Paul "The Shot" Hurley, Dick Fuller and Gordie Clarke isn't far behind. The third line — all hustling sophomores — has Mike Flynn centering for Jim Prettvett and Mike Robinson is an exciting one.

Wrestling Captain Rick Bradley prepares to lead matmen in second half of varsity schedule.

Bill Norris, B.C. Track Captain, ran a 4:12 mile at the Harvard meet and looks forward to the upcoming winter competitions.

FOOTBALL — SCHOLAR O'NEILL WINS N.C.A.A. GRADUATE AWARD

Mike O'Neill, a three-year veteran of the Boston College football team, has been awarded a $1,000 scholarship for post-graduate study at the university or professional school of his choice by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

O'Neill was given the award in recognition of his outstanding performances on both the football field and in the classroom.

Michael O'Neill, of Syracuse, N.Y., veteran end and place kicking specialist, pre-medical Dean's List student and winner of the 1966 NCAA Student-Athlete Scholarship Award.

He was one of the top receivers on Coach Jim Miller's football team, catching seven passes for 140 yards and one touchdown. He was also the team's kicking specialist, converting 10 of 11 extra-point attempts and booting two field goals.

Mike is also a top-notch student. He is a three-year Dean's List student in the Pre-Medical program in the College of Arts and Sciences. Earlier this year, O'Neill was awarded membership in the Cross and Crown, the campus honor society.

After graduation, Mike plans to attend medical school at either Harvard or Tufts.

O'Neill is the second Boston College football player in as many seasons to win a student-athlete scholarship from the NCAA. Last year, defensive back Larry Marzetti was given the honor. He is currently enrolled in the Georgetown Law School.

Each year, there are only three players given the scholarships in the University Division of the NCAA's First Division. In the words of Walter Byers, executive director of the Association, "Considering the number of potential candidates . . . this award stands as a significant honor for the student and a tribute to your institution."

Tom Donovan, USAF, Clark Field, Philippines, Paul Markey's daughter in Ecuador, Richard Landrign, '66 in Chile Peace Corps. (both). Paul Donovan, Jr. is teaching German at University of Delaware. Ed Murray's son, Robert is a freshman at St. Michael's in Vt. and Robert Donovan is the same at B.C. Dr. Jim Riley, Jr. B.C. and Tufts Dental is associated with Dr. Edwin Thomas, also B.C., in his large Mattapan office. Lt. Chris Mungovan at Monmouth preparing for psychological warfare, while his sister Mary is social worker at Boston Juvenile Court Mental Health Clinic. If speeding on Mass. Pike watch out for Peter Dolan, Jr., state trooper at Southboro. Bill McCann, former V.P. of Benziger Bross, is now with Sadlier, Publishers. Phil Rynn is I hear in Europe and so missed our dinner. Father Bill Leonard, S.J. who would have been B.C. '29 is Chairman of Theology at B.C. and doing a great job. Also of interest to B.C. High alumni: Father Tom Higgins, S.J., former St. Joseph's (Phila.), president and a 50 year Jesuit, dropped in at the Heights this summer and sends his best.

Please forgive receipt of blank notices for October dinner and misspellings in last notes. (Boston names and my writing baffled Marita Semler of New Jersey, the transcriber.) Best wishes to you and yours for 1967.

'30 JOHN F. DWYER
45 Belvoir Road, Milton, Mass.

Captain. Thomas L. Kelly, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Kelly of Milton, married Marijean Hare at the Church of the Holy Spirit in Grand Rapids, Michigan on September 3. After a honeymoon in Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly are residing at New Seabury, Cape Cod. Captain Kelly is attached to the medical staff at Otis Air Force Base.

The class was saddened by the death of Dr. Thomas J. Cavanaugh on September 20. Funeral High Mass was celebrated at Saint Ignatius Church at Chestnut Hill on September 23. Among those present in the large attendance were: Dr. and Mrs. Garrett Sullivan, Dr. and Mrs. James Carolan, Dr. and Mrs. Francis Higgins, John Groden, John Haverly, Tom Connors, Ted Hoppe, John Dwyer, Jim Reagan, Joe Whitehead and Frank Tallino. Dr. Cavanaugh was enrolled by the class to perpetual membership in the Jesuit Seminary Guild. May he rest in peace. Monsignor John M. Connolly and Rev. Daniel J. Kelleher were in the large procession of clergymen at the funeral.

Rev. Laurence F. Carew, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence F. Carew of 51 Carter Drive, Stamford, Conn., was ordained to the Priesthood by his Excellency Walter W. Curtis, Bishop of Bridgeport on Saturday, December 17 at St. Mary's Church in Stamford. Father celebrated his first Solemn Mass at St. Mary's on Sunday, December 18, followed by blessings and reception at St. Mary's school hall.

John Grandfield was heard on the Hot Corner, WNAC, praising Mike Holovak for sticking with quarterback Babe Parilli of the Boston Patriots after his poor start in the season. Babe was recently named Comeback Player of the Year in the NFL.

Father John Ryan, S.J. flew from Fairfield University to attend the B.C.-Holy Cross game. During the past Summer Mr. and Mrs. C. Albert McCarthy toured England, Italy and Ireland and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hoppe vacationed in Ireland. Ted liked the Irish breakfasts.

Messrs. Fitzgerald, Devaney, Crosby, Butters and the Currans — Mike and John, were at the Harvest Dinner.

You can always see Andy Anderson at the games; Joe Callaghan was seen at The Game.

Mike Curran and his wife visited their married daughter in Germany this past summer. By the way, I was in England for a couple of weeks myself this autumn.

Joe McCook left Springfield for Florida. Sorry to report the death of our esteemed classmate, Dr. Solomon Hajjar.

John and Anna Barrett made their holiday visit to Boston. John is feeling much better after a bout of sickness this fall.

I am indebted to a member of the Class of '25 for a note to the effect that Bishop Wright in November received an award at Iona College of New Rochelle from the Board of Lay Trustees.

Would that some members of the Class of '31 would be as diligent in sending me news!

'32 JOHN P. CONNOR
24 Clestwood Circle, Norwood

The deepest sympathy of the class is extended to Gerry Moore who recently lost his mother and to Ed Gallagher whose brother passed away.

Fr. Fred Minigan recently was appointed Pastor of St. George Parish in Haverhill. Classmates John Teehan and John Callahan are up and around and looking good after both were confined to the hospital with very severe operations. Monsignor Jim Cotter has been appointed a member of the new senate of the diocese of Boston and Monsignor Jerry Collins was also one of its first members. George Burke, the squire of Newton has a son attending Notre Dame in Indiana.

I ran into George Burke and Ed Hurley at the B.C.-Navy game at Annapolis. Ed Mannix announced the marriage of his daughter Linda last July 30. Linda graduated from the School of Education in the class of 1966.

Bill Dunne is a Math teacher and coach at Bernardsville High School in New Jersey. Bill and Jeanne are kept busy with their six children — four girls and two boys.

John Moynahan, President of the New York headquartered John Moynahan & Co., Inc. addressed the 33rd annual meeting of The Life Insurance Advertisers Association on The View from the Twenty-first Century (Public Relations in Perspective). He has served as Director of Information of the Manhattan (Atomic Bomb) Project, Director of the National Center for Citizens in Education, Council Member of the Wings Club, and is a member of the Overseas Press Club.

Msgr. Pete Tuohy's St. Patrick's Church has joined the Greater Brockton Council of Churches with the permission of the Boston Archdiocese Ecumenical Commission. This tradition-shattering move will set the pace for future inter-faith cooperation.

John Mackin was the subject of a recent Boston Globe Sports Profile.

John Desmond, now with the New England Telephone Company after retiring from the F.B.I., is active in civic affairs, serving on the board of directors of the Norumbega Council of Boy Scouts, American Cancer Society, and the Hibernia Savings Bank.

Father Wilfrid Bouvier, S.J. has prepared an up-to-date list of the deceased members of the class. Please remember them in your prayers. A copy of the list has been sent to all class members.

'34 REV. JOHN A. SAUNDERS
St. Agatha's Rectory
432 Adams Street, Milton

The class mourns the passing of one more of our members, Colonel Ed Halligan, U.S. Army, who died August 13, 1966. Ed was commanding Officer of the military operations at the AEC testing grounds, Las Vegas, Nevada. Our sympathy to his wife, Irma, and his two girls, Susan and Jane. Our sympathy also, to Jerry Weidman on the death of his mother and to Bill Ray whose father passed away. We pray that God in His mercy will grant them eternal rest.

We congratulate: Dan Cronin who recently was made director in charge of the Public Welfare Department, City of Boston; Lou Musco, who was re-elected Registrar of Probate, Suffolk County; Rt. Rev. Charles F. Dewel, who was named pastor of St. Mary's, Star of the Sea Church, East Boston; Dr. John McGillicuddy, who was honored as "Man of the Year" by the students of Boston College for his outstanding dedication to our athletic teams. Some of the replies to Bob Glennon's notice for our last dinner were very interesting. Joe Orlosky from Seattle, Washington, "Sometimes, I wish I were living on the East Coast just so I could attend the class functions. You may be sure though my presence will be lacking, I will be there in spirit. So give all the boys my best wishes." We found that Dr. Joe Warren was associated with the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, Kentucky. George Moore is still the squire of Greenfield, Mass. Still on correspondence, Ed Long wrote from Albuquerque, New Mexico, where he is senior technical writer and science information consultant for the Air Force at the Air Force Laboratory, Kirtland Air Force Base, New Mexico. The class keeping its tradition attended the football games in great numbers from Navy to Holy Cross. We met Judge Artesani, Frank Burns, Bill Carr, Owen Clarke, John Connors, Tim Donohue, Jim Earls, Ike Esment. Saw like at Villanova, Pat Ford, Father Jack Fogarty, John Freitas, all the way from White Junction, Vt. for the Syracuse game, Bob Glennon, Bill Hickey, Walter Kelly, Dr. John McGillicuddy, John I. P. McCarthy, Lou Musco, Frank Noonan, Bob Ott, Fr. Dan Sullivan, Dr. Frank Sullivan, Greg Sullivan, Tom Sullivan. If I missed any one I am sorry. Frank Brow is now in charge of Program Development, Boston School system. Again, send me your news items. Best wishes for the New Year.

Condolences of the class are extended to Fr. Robert Adams on the death of his father. Fr. Edward J. O'Keefe celebrated his Silver Jubilee of Ordination this past year. He is Pastor of St. Mary's, Alpha, N.J.

Fr. John Taglino is now Pastor of Our Lady of the Assumption: Parish in East Boston.

Dr. Jim McDonough has succeeded Dr. Chris Duncan as Chairman of the Second Phase of the University Development Drive.

Dr. John Griffin, Deputy Supreme Knight of the K. of C. was one of four Supreme Officers to be made a Knight of St. Gregory by Pope Paul VI.

And under the heading of once in a million shots, Winchester John Griffin met up with Dr. John, whom he hadn't seen for lo, these many years, on Garden State Parkway, New Jersey, while the former was gassing up (his car) en route to the Navy game.

Ray Perry, professor at Coast Guard Academy, represented the Academy at the dedication of the Higgins Building and Science Seminar and Convocation for awarding honorary degrees.

Captain Anthony DeVico, Commanding Officer of the Naval Justice School in Newport, R.I., was commended in the House of Representatives by the House Armed Services Committee for his speech he made before the graduating class at the Justice School last July. The speech went into the Congressional Record.

24 High Street, Natick, Mass.

Deepest sympathy and prayers of the class are offered to the family of Bishop Ed Lawton, who died suddenly in December. Ed, Bishop of Sokoto, Nigeria, had been in Boston only a few months earlier and had met with other classmates including Monsignor Larry Riley.

Father Donald "Jim" Keenan recently returned from Asia Minor, where he had been on an assignment from the Chief of Chaplains of the Air Force, conducting missions for Air Force Personnel in Turkey—winding up with a tour through the East, the Holy Lands, and Rome. Father Jim conducted a mission in his home parish in Malden, with Al Burgoyne's nephew as altar-boy, before taking up his new duties as Retreat Master at the Passionist Monastery Retreat House in North Palm Beach, Florida. He welcomes all classmates down for a retreat—his slogan, too, is "Come-On-Down."

Tip O'Neil helped dedicate the J.F.K. Government Center in Boston in September — and of course was handsomely re-elected to Congress in November.

George Goodwin of Wellesley made news in December. The State Mutual Life Insurance Company of America announced that George had led the Company's entire force of field representatives for the month of November with sales of over $2 million.

Navy Chaplain John Keeley was promoted to the rank of Captain at ceremonies held at the headquarters of the Pacific Fleet Service Force in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Father Keeley is currently the Assistant Pacific Fleet Chaplain and occupies the same position for the Service Force.

Our Thirtieth Anniversary officially started on Friday evening, December 9, 1966 at our Stag dinner held at Alumni Hall. Only four of our classmates of the priesthood who are celebrating their Silver Jubilee as priests attended, namely: Mons. John M. Quirk, Fr. Henry Barry and Fr. John Kiely. Fr. Paul McManus was also present but had to leave early due to his duties as coach of St. Mary's basketball team.

Also seated at the head table were Mons. John Linnehan and Fr. Myer Tobey, S.J. who came all the way from Baltimore, Maryland. Judge Teddy Glynn, Toastmaster, did a most commendable job.

The following classmates were present: Joseph H. Keaney, Alex Pszenney, Al Tortolini and Andy Dominick who came from Manchester, N.H. It was great to see this old football crowd and the way they looked may give the football authorities of our old Alma Mater an idea to recruit them once more to play for B.C.

Present also were Asst. Dist. Atty. Bill Doherty; Steve Higgins, the friendly undertaker, John J. Herlihy, Joe Murray, the youthful father; Steve Witham whose daughter (Sr. Patricia Mary), a Maryknoll Nun, is located in Talcahuano, Chile; Tom Saint, Gen. Manager of Whirlpool Div. of the Eastern Co.; Francis Murphy who came up from Barrington, R.I.; John E. Keary, the F.B.I. man from New Bedford, Mass.; Steve Graham, Jim Nolan, Leo Coveney, (the father of a four-month boy—this makes 10), ever handsome Ben Hines of Marshfield, Tim Sullivan, the Senior Law Clerk at U.S. Dist. Court in Boston; our efficient and honest Treasurer of our Class, Tom Gaquin; John Barrett, Frank Ryan, ever loyal Tom McDermott who is a committee in himself to keep the class together; John Pike who will make a special trip to see Fr. Fred Adelman in Germany; George (Mr. Insurance Man) Curtin who helped at the door that evening with his usual smile; George McGunnigle as usual who came up from the wilds of West Hartford, Conn. (He and Mrs. McGunnigle celebrated their 25th Wedding Anniversary by touring Europe), our photographer, Asst. Supt. of

Oh, deem not they are blest alone
Whose lives a peaceful tenor keep;
The Power who pities man has shown
A blessing for the eyes that weep.

The light of smiles shall fill again
The lids that overflow with tears;
And weary hours of woe and pain
Are promises of happier years.

For God has marked each sorrowing day,
And numbered every secret tear,
And heaven's long age of bliss shall pay
For all his children suffer here.

DON'T FORGET
LAETARE SUNDAY
MARCH 5, 1967

Boston's Police Dept., John Bonner; Gene Bonner who came up from Phila., Penn. and who also awakened me at midnight the eve of our dinner to confirm reservations; James Doherty, the Insurance man from Andover; Bernie McMahon, the youthful Principal of Wilmington High School; Vic DeRubeis, the linguist from the Everett Public Schools; Jim McCarty who claims to be the father of a future T.V. star; Bob Finnegan, the Business Executive from Wellesley; John Nick Burns from Cohasset who just married off a daughter to a B.C. grad of '66; and, of course, Bill Costello who had a whole of a time and who is quite a guy, and yours truly.

Cocktails were served before meal and after meal, and the last of the crowd dispersed after midnight. The meal was excellent and beautiful silver embossed ash trays were presented to the Silver Jubilarians who were present. Similar gifts were mailed to Fr. Bill Anderson, Fr. Leonard Burke, Fr. David Burke, Fr. Bob Brennan, Mons. Bob Sennott, Fr. Dan Hannigan, Fr. George Gray, Fr. Dan O'Leary, Fr. John McDonough and Fr. Bill McDonough, Fr. Tom Moriarty and Fr. John Palmieri.

Those of us who were present will never forget the kind words expressed by Fr. Meyer Tobey who told us that he had to come and tell us how grateful he felt in being a part of us. He literally opened his heart to tell us how he felt towards the friendship he saw among the classmates. We knew him as a young Jewish boy and now he is a loyal son of St. Ignatius of Loyola. He paid special tribute to Bill (Red) Valade of Mich. He was greeted by most all of us with an affectionate bear hug. He has promised us to forward me a letter to the whole class. It will be my privilege to have it published in the Alumni News at a future date. His present address is: Chaplain of the Baltimore State Penitentiary, 720 N. Calvert St., Baltimore, Md. We extend to Fr. Meyer the class condolences on the loss of his father last September. His mother resides at 44 Mt. Vernon St., Brighton.

I also received a lovely letter from Fr. John J. McCabe from

Parroquia De Cristo Rey
Padres De Maryknoll
Cochabamba, Bolivia

He explains his life in this outpost and I hope to get permission to have the whole letter published in the Alumni News at a future date. It was a pleasure to hear from you, Father, and the members of the class present at our dinner enjoyed your picture. Keep up the good work and let us hear from you. Fr. McCabe keeps in contact with the Padres of St. James the Apostle by his Ham Radio. His license is C P 5 A U. He intends to be in Boston sometime in August of '67.

I also received a letter from Fremont Scott. He works for M and T Chemicals, Inc. 26701 Telegraph Rd., Southfield, Mich. 48075. He is the Research Director-Coatings of the above company. His latest home add. is 7480 East Greenwich Drive, Birmingham, Mich. 48008. He wants to be remembered to the Class, but especially to Larry Sanford, Steve Graham and Futransky.

He has five children, one of them is a teacher and the youngest is in the first grade and is ready to take off into space like all first graders. Nice to hear from you.

We are also proud to report that Al Flahive, the weather forecaster from the U.S. Weather Bureau at Logan Airport has just completed a 16-week Refresher Course sponsored by the U. D. Weather Bureau at the Univ. of Mich. His study was the "Probability and Statistics in Weather Forecasting and the effects of various Physical Processes in the Atmosphere." Keep up the good work, Al, however try to keep the snow away from Boston and vicinity and do try and come to our get-togethers.

The condolences of the Class are extended to the family of another one of our classmates who was called to his Eternal Reward, namely Dr. Joseph A. O'Brien. An Altar Stone was sent in his memory from the Class.

Capt. Paul R. Lally, SC, USN, retired September 1 after 26 years of active naval service. He was serving on duty as Director, Naval Area Audit Service, Philadelphia, Pa.

'38 THOMAS F. TRUE, JR.
37 Pomfret Street
West Roxbury, Mass. 02132

We received the following letter, bearing sad news to the members of the class, just too late to include in the last issue of the Alumni News.

Sept. 30, 1966

Dear Mr. True:

Would you kindly note in the next issue of the Alumni News that my husband, Walter F. Hennessey, died in April at the V.A. Hospital, Jamaica Plain.

His brothers, Fr. Gerald Hennessey, S.J., head of the science department at St. George's College, Jamaica, B.W.I., and Fr. Thomas Hennessey, S.J., chaplain with the Armed Services in Germany, were able to get home for the funeral. Walter's sister, Sister Gertrude Agnes, S.N.D., a teacher at St. Joseph's School in Somerville, was there too.

We have three children, Dick, Paul and Ann. Before his death, Walter was associated with the Retirement Law Commission. We live at 115 Nonantum St., Newton, Mass.

Sincerely yours,

Mary A. Hennessey

To "Spikes'" family we extend our sincere sympathy. We also offer our condolences to John Galway, whose mother passed away recently. While John's father was cleaning out a storeroom in their house he came across 30 copies of our Sub Turri. Anyone desiring a copy contact Jim Dailey, 55 Bright Rd., Belmont. For payment a contribution can be sent to our class treasury.

According to one of the new members of the community at Shadowbrook who must remain nameless, Father Gerry O'Mallaghan, S.J. is doing an excellent job as catalyst of novices. Evidently he didn't have as much influence on his own family. His sister is married to a former Holy Cross (and Red Sox) pitcher, Joe Mulligan.

Recently we heard that Fr. Gerry's former fellow defenseman, Jim Casey had a setback.

Hope it isn't too serious, Jim, and best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Our late classmate Ed Toomey's son Bob is on the BC Freshman Hockey team. His brother Dick plays for the BU Freshmen. Both, former high school stars, show the potential of becoming outstanding college players. Their mother must have a problem as to how to root when BC faces BU.

A pleasant evening was enjoyed by all who sat at our class table at the dance the night before the Cross game—Jim Dailey, Dr. Dick Stanton, Bill Finan, Jack Guthrie, Tom True and Frank Finnegan. Herb Scannell and his wife sat with friends at an adjoining table. Mr. James O'Hare, S.J. is furthering his studies at Tufts University on a scholarship.

At the BC-Syracuse game we spotted Dick Canavan, Vin Shamirian, Jake O'Malley and Jack Sullivan. At the Navy game—again Jake O'Malley, Monsignor John McManmon, Bill Gorman, Colonel John King and Charlie Donelan. Charlie's son Matty, now a senior at Harvard, was a linebacker on the football team this past season. "June" King's boy was a star back on the BC Freshman team. Dick Canavan's daughter is teaching school in Westbury, Conn. Joe Lincoln's son Peter is a senior at BC, a younger boy Christopher is in the Sophomore class at Tufts University, taking the pre-med course. We met Joe recently and he looks as young as the day we graduated. That South Shore air must agree with him, formerly from Hingham, the Lincolns now live in Scituate.

Friends of Frank Finnegan tendered him a testimonial dinner on Jan. 14 honoring him on his promotion to Deputy Chief of the Boston Fire Dept. John Janusas, at Lexington High School, last fall completed 21 years of coaching football.

Dr. Phil Marco represented Boston College as an academic delegate to the inauguration of Dr. W. Merle Hill as 13th president of Christian College, two-year college for women in Columbia, Mo.

'39 THOMAS F. TURNAN '39
Six Johnson Road
Arlington, Mass. 02174

We are always willing and, indeed, edified to open these dispatches by detailing the splendid example set by the men of 'Thirty-Nine. Dan Horton, past president of St. James Holy Name Society, Wellesley, gave up the horses last year, for instance. At least he effectively recommended that Cott Bottling Company of Somerville, for which he is Brockton-based regional sales manager, turn in its merry-go-round for the sales promoting helicopter now supplied for clambakes, quilting bees, Sunday School picnics, etc.

Dan's oldest girl, Eileen, a Brandeis graduate with a Master's in Education from Harvard, is teaching in the Walpole, Mass., school system. Daughter Kathleen is a Junior in Education at Boston College. Son Kevin, 8-letter man at Natick High School, is captain of the hockey team there this year. Dan, Jr., played in Quebec two years ago on the Greater Boston Pee-Wee All-Star Hockey Team and son Michael, nine years old, is also a hockey player.

Another second generation 'Thirty-Niner will play in the Quebec International Tournament this year. Jackie Brennan, 12-year-old son of Frank Brennan, has been selected for the Greater Boston Pee-Wee Hockey All-Stars who journey north in February. Jackie and a younger brother, Tom, play for the Belmont Pee-Wees; sister Mary Ann plays field hockey for Winchester High and sister Eileen plays for Lynch Junior High. Frank ferries kids, pads and dads to four rinks on weekends.

Paul Dunigan, never much of a vest man, bought one recently to pop the buttons off when it was announced that Paul, Jr., had achieved the rating of Finalist in the National Merit Scholarship Program. This placed him in the elite group of less than one-half of 1% of top high school seniors in the nation in terms of intellectual attainment and promise. Paul, Jr., opted Gonzaga University at Spokane to major in chemistry. Paul is with Battele Northwest and lives in Richland, Washington.

John J. Kelley turns out to be, among other distinctions, Executive Vice-President of Raymond Rosen & Co., major distributors for RCA Victor and RCA Whirlpool in the Greater Philadelphia area. The other distinctions find him on the Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Better Business Bureau and on the Executive Organization Committee of the Catholic Charities Appeal in Pennsylvania's largest city. Jack's son, Jack, a Villanova graduate, is associated with him at RR&Co.; a second son, Robert, attends the University of Pennsylvania, and his youngest, Richard, is at LaSalle College High.

On the other hand, if laundry is no problem but production is held up because your diatomaceous earth isn't chemically pure, Frank Lord may be the man to see. He is sales representative in New England and New York for Bauer Brothers of Springfield, Ohio, manufacturers of equipment for the food and processing industries. Water was always just water as far as we were concerned but, now that Frank has revealed how much supermicroscopic silt he can strain out of it, we may never touch another drop, ever.

The Board of Trustees of Southeastern Massachusetts Technological Institute in North Dartmouth appointed George W. Falon assistant to the president of the Institute, effective January 1. Prior to this appointment George, a former F.B.I. agent, had been associated with the Boston Edison Company in various administrative positions, most recently as that utility's director of safety and chairman of its corporate accident prevention committee. A member of the American, Massachusetts, and Boston Bar Associations, he is an expert in labor law and labor relations. The Falons, who live in Norwell, have five children: one in Viet Nam, one at Wentworth Institute, one married and two in school.

John L. Sullivan, our Mystic, Connecticut restaurateur, was a guest of honor at the dedication of the Elks Home which he helped to fund and build during his administration as Exalted Ruler, B.P.O.E. The Sullivans have one daughter, 11-year-old Brenda.

Thirty-Nine's "Most Chivalrous", Arnolducci (Sub Turri, p. 247), is now looking for bigger tanks to put tigers in. He is operating in the Marketing Section of Humble Oil and Refining Company's Industrial Products Division in Pelham, New York and his commodity is aviation products. The Buccis live in Scarsdale.

Expanding earlier reports here: Tim Dacey received his star and a new assignment. It is now Brigadier General Dacey, United States Air Force, Director of Personnel, Strategic Air Command, Omaha, Nebraska. Ed Holland, son of our Bill, captain of the 1966 Boston Latin School football team, was selected as the team's Most Valuable Player in the traditional Boston Latin-Boston English game. Latin won.

Among the M.D.'s: John G. Flynn of Salem is the school physician in the Salem school system. That last was incidental intelligence elicited in an interview with Larry Fitzpatrick, Superintendent of Schools in Salem who was recently elected to the Corporate Board of Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries in Boston.

The bitter note in this summary comes from the announcement of the death of John E. Cronin. He was an active supporter of The Class, and of The College, from the first moment he joined us. No more will his strong tenor lead us in "Hail, Alma Mater", and we grieve because we have lost a friend. Requiescat in Pace.

Jim McGuire, vice president of Canteen Corporation, Chicago, Ill., was named president of the National Automatic Merchandising Association, national grade group of the automatic vending industry. Lieut. Commander Paul Needham has completed two weeks of instruction at the U.S. Naval Academy as a part of the Academy's Information Officer Program. Paul is qualified as one of the select group of Information Officers who serve as local area guidance counselors for high school students interested in attending the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland.

'40 JAMES M. KEAN
15 Sanderson Place, Brighton

The last time we got together we were anticipating a slam bang football season. Well, we weren't disappointed. But, ooh, these black and blue marks still hurt. Even in disappointment though, if you look long and hard enough, you are bound to see some good. So, at Villanova we stared, and sure enough, way up in the stands we found the Costigans, Joe, his wife Kathleen, and daughter, Kathy. They had come down from Shrewsbury, New Jersey, for the game. Joe has his own business, a truck distributorship, in Mountainside, New Jersey. If you can't find him in his office, check the Eagles' schedules. Joe is still as rabid a fan as he was back in the days when he used to wait with Father John Coffey for a ride at the Switch in Roxbury.

Still reading the Philadelphia story, it's nice to report that Paul Duffey outdid himself in congeniality hosting the reception and party sponsored by the Philadelphia Club following the game. Paul keeps busy managing the eastern district area for Federal Sign & Signal Corporation, a Philadelphia concern, reputedly the world's largest electrical advertising firm. Paul's oldest boy, Paul Jr., is in the Naval Air Intelligence, while his oldest girl, Cynthia, flies out of Miami as a stewardess for National Air Lines. Four little Duffeys occupy Momma Rita's time at their Drexel Hill home.

Also in the partying department were the Desmonds. Following the game, Henry and

DREAM VOYAGES

The Worldwide Freighter Guide may help make your dream of a relaxing ocean cruise to exotic ports, at prices as low as staying at home, come true. The 1967 edition of "Travel Routes Around the World" shows schedules, routes and accommodations of 700 passenger carrying freight liners, offering a variety of voyages. Fares vary with length of voyage, many costing less than $12 per day including first class accommodations. Send for book, $1.25 postpaid to Bestseller Books, 40-21B Bell Blvd., Bayside, N.Y. 11361.

Muriel hosted none other than the Villanova coach, Alex Bell. After hearing Henry's "right from the horse's mouth" explanation of the game, I think he should have done his parting the night before the game, and should have heisted instead of hosted Coach Bell.

Speaking of hosts, you may include the name of the John J. McCarthys as among the most gracious. Taunton Jack whom many of you will recall from his football playing days at Coyle high, now lives in the Chestnut Hill section of Philadelphia. Jack is happily married to the former Mary Stewart, and has seven youngsters, the oldest of whom, Jack Jr., is a senior at the college this year. Young Jack is also President of the Boston College band. He is the fourth member of the McCarthy clan to matriculate at the Heights. When the band went to Philadelphia for the Villanova game, the McCarthys opened their home to the troubadours in a welcome that has them still talking. Jack senior is Manager of the Sales Engineering Department of the Railway Division of the Budd Company.

Joe Dalton, out in Manson, Iowa, whose business pitch is distributing advertising specialties, and manufacturing calendars, won't chuckle at it, but the class has just come up with a successful candidate for office who accomplished his mission with nary a bit of advertising or publicity. Trouble now is that I don't know how to address him. Monsignor Bill Granville was recently elected senator in the newly formed archdiocesan priests' tribunal. This is an honor in itself, but now comes further glory. The elected senators chose him to be President of their senate. Which leaves me in a quandary. Is it President, Senator, or Monsignor Granville when we address him? Whatever it is, Congratulations on all three counts.

A goodly representation of the medic side of the class was found at the Harvest Festival the night before the Cross game. Included were Tom Duncan, Art Hassett, Dick Wright, Bob Tilley, Will Powers, and Walter Carigan. At the same table, arguing the layman's side of Medicare or maybe looking for more pledges, was Tom Cudmore. If you weren't approached to buy a ticket for the affair, blame Henry Desmond. He was the class agent for the evening.

Thanks, Charlie Carroll, for the news on the change of address. The Squire of Wellesley Hills recently moved his brood to Greenwich, Connecticut. Charlie is a Vice-President with the Stop and Shop food chain.

That's right, it was Wright. That nifty looking center on the second line for the Yale Freshmen is Dick's boy, Eddie. Saw

Congratulations are in order for Father Bill Sullivan, S.J., Chairman of the Biology Department here at the college. This department was recently honored with a substantial grant for cancer research by the Alfred and Christine Sonntag Foundation.

Patten's Restaurant was the scene of the latest meeting held by the class steering committee. Proof that a full stomach can bring about some creative thinking and planning may be seen in your class mail received or to be received shortly. Among those present were Leo Sullivan, Harry White, Bill Joy, Tom Cudmore, Tom Duffey, Bob McGovern, and Henry Desmond.

If you are looking for an escape to the Continent but don't have the wherewithal, suggest you contact Frank Ahearn and have him show you his slides. Ed Barrett and your correspondent spent a wonderful evening with the Ahearns recently while Frank performed in a delightful John Lurch manner. For you in the hinterlands, Brother Lurch is a very popular and interesting travel commentator for a Boston radio station.

Couldn't wind up these notes without mentioning the many Christmas cards that came our way during the Christmas season. Thanks for your thoughtfulness. Next time though, have the name tell us something. Take Tom and Marie Cudmore's card for instance. Their cat Dusty made this column before some of you just because they took the time to include him in their very amusing and original greeting. Incidentally, Tom, Dusty fell out of the car and got lost.

Jeremiah Twomey has been named Los Angeles district manager for the chemical division, United States Rubber Company.

Joe McKenney has been named director of public relations for the MBTA.

The condolences of the Class are offered to the family of Al Lukachik who died recently. Al is fondly remembered as a friend and loyal classmate, in addition to his many feats on the gridiron in the Bowl era. While working as a tax agent for his State of Connecticut, Al was active in scholarship fund drives and was preparing a book on the history of football in his native state.

Word has got about that Fr. Ed Cowhig is re-enlisting in the paratroopers. Much luck to the Flying Parson, and also in his quest to get down to his weight level of some twenty-two years ago.

Bernie Frazier has been elected a member of the National Board of Trustees of the National Conference of Christians and Jews at the group's annual meeting held in Washington.

Thanks to the efforts of very capable and efficient chairmen and their committees, and the cooperation of many classmates, our silver anniversary year is off the ground and well on its way.

Msgr. Paul Harrington, Dick Ferriter and

Frank Dever are to be congratulated on a fine job for our initial event. A memorial Mass for deceased members preceded the introductory stag banquet which was attended by close to a hundred members including the following: Charlie Ahern, Dan Barrett, Moe Bordenca, Larry Brennan, Bill Bugden, Jim Cahalane, Charlie Capraro, Jim Collins, Frank Cronin, Vin DeBenedictis, Fran Doherty, John Doyle, Bob Dunn, John C. Fitzgerald, Bill Gaine, John Gibbons, Dick Grainger, Bob Harris, Clem Hassenfus, Tom Hinchey, Gerry Joyce, Butch Kissell, Tom Lane, Frank Mahoney, Jim McAvoy, Ed McDonald, John McGowan, Joe Miller, Bob Molloy, Ted Mulvehill, Bob Muse, Frank Nicholson, Dick O'Halloran, Connie Pappas, Bill Powers, Jim Reilly, Bill Riley, Fred Seely, Jim Stanton, Dick Stiles, Bob Troy, Tony Cinto, Jim McCarthy, Gerry Donovan, Jim Barnicle, Art Blaisdell, Jim Boudreau, Ed Browne, Bill Cadigan, Tim Calahan, Amby Claus, Ronnie Corbett, Tom Dawson, Frank Dever, Charlie Donovan, Frank Driscoll, Dick Ferriter, John E. Fitzgerald, Bob Gallagher, Phil Gill, E. J. Handy, Jack Hart, Doc Healey, Walter Holder, Ed Keyes, Louis Kuc, Paul Maguire, Joe Marcantonio, Frank McCue, Tom McDonald, Gerry McMorrow, John Mitchell, Al Morin, Frank Murphy, Harry Nash, Jim O'Brien, Paul O'Hara, Joe Paziokas, Bill Quinn, Murray Rice, Tom Russell, Fred Sliney, Joe Stanton, Leo Strumski, Leo Walsh, John Ronan, Bill Connelly, Ned Martin.

All in attendance were unanimous in voicing their pleasure with the complete success of this affair and this should set the stage for subsequent gatherings.

A capsule story of the past 25 yrs. by each member proved interesting, entertaining and nostalgic.

The following awards were made: Harry Nash, Most Children; Frank Driscoll, Least Hair; Leo Strumski, Most Weight; Jim Riley, Worst golfer.

Leo Strumski followed with a fine job on our Homecoming Luncheon. The champagne and hotdog repast was enjoyed by about 40 families and gave us a chance to see and meet the future Eagles including Ed McDonald's son, Ed, a starting member of the Freshman Eleven.

Carrying on in true '42 tradition Amby Claus and co-chairmen for the class on the pre Holy Cross Dance set a record for the most couples from a class to attend this function.

So, to those of you who have faithfully attended and those who realize they have missed some good times, let's start '67 with a 100% attendance at the wine tasting buffet and dance at Alumni Hall on Feb. 11th. Joe Marcantonio has made extensive preparations for this event so when the notice comes, get with it and make your reservations immediately. Also, if you haven't done so, please mail in a check for your dues and if you have any news for these notes include that also.

Brian Sullivan has been appointed division manager—north Boston with New England Telephone.

Rescue operations and emergency procedures to prevent greater tragedy aboard the aircraft carrier USS Oriskany were directed by the commanding officer, Capt. John H. Iarrobino. Jack's role as commanding officer was unique. He was the second of his family to command the 44,000 ton attack carrier and it was his second command in the Vietnam war.

Our sincere thanks to the entire staff at Alumni Hall for the splendid cooperation they have afforded us and for all they will do in the future.

N.B.—Business meeting:

Alumni Hall
Monday, Jan. 30th—7:00 P.M.
All are welcome and needed.

Had a note from John Lyness who is now living in Swampscott. John is married to Jane Connolly (Emmanuel) and has six children and it's a balanced household — 3 and 3. Employed by United Shoe in Boston, John completed the Professional Management Development Program at Harvard Business School in 1965.

We also heard from Angelo L. Annacone who holds his Doctorate and is Associate Professor of Math at Paterson State College in Wayne, N.J. Angie has been granted a Sabbatical Leave for January-June 1967 to conduct a research project which involves the updating of the elementary school Math program in North Jersey. He will be working with superintendents, principals, Math supervisors and curricula directors. Good luck on the project Angie.

Saw Bill McCarthy at a Kiwanis interclub meeting. We will let him tell you where. Incidentally, Chris Flynn is the newly elected president of the Boston Kiwanis Club.

The annual night before the Cross game festival was excellent as usual, with a scattering of 44's including Tino Spatola, Chris Flynn, Don White, Mike Gargan, Ed Thomas, Bill Daly, Ed O'Keefe, John O'Kane, Ed Donovan, Marty Coleman and Gerry Finnerty.

Ed Geary by the way has a fine position with the National Gypsum Co. John Cataldo is now State Deputy of the K. of C.

Joe Delaney, now back in Westwood, is still with Howard Johnson's. (Aren't you sad at leaving Florida?)

Bob Le Blanc is still following our B.C. hockey team.

It's now T. A. Spatola Co., 42 Newmarket Square (Wholesale Lamb).

Sumner "Sub" Greenfield is an Associate Professor of Romance Languages at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. from Harvard.

May we suggest: We don't "make" news notes — you do. Please drop us a note.

While Neil Restani was visiting Washington, D.C., he visited Andy McLaughlin who is with the I.C.C. living in Virginia. Carroll Cummings is doing government work in Maryland. Paul (Red) Donohue is also working with the government. Fr. Mike Farina is also in the D.C. area. Ernest Graustein has been promoted to district commercial manager for the Pawtucket, Woonsocket, East Greenwich, Newport and Westerly areas by New England Telephone. A congratulation is also extended to Ernie on his promotion to Colonel in the Marine Corps Reserve.

We extend our sympathy to Charlie Earley of Wellesley and his family on the death of his father.

The passing of John Drummey, who was such a great inspiration to us in the business school particularly, was a sad moment and to his family also go our condolences.

We extend somewhat late congratulations to William Costello who was made Police Chief of Concord last year. Bill started with us and after going into the army did not happen to rejoin our group. He lives in Concord and The Costellos have two daughters.

Our class was well represented at the B.C.-H.C. dinner dance with four tables. Edward and Betty Finigan, Bill and Mary Sullivan, Joe and Eve Herbert, the Joe Harringtons of Belmont, the Jack McCarthy's of Newton, the Leo McGraths, the John Hogans, the Lou Sorgis were among those attending.

We saw Bill Hamrock with his "American Optical" sunglasses the next day at the B.C.-H.C. football game, also the Bill O'Sullivan's who have never missed this particular game. T. X. Cronin and his number 4 son were present. Bill Hamrock incidentally played center for Holy Cross when a few of us were sent up to Holy Cross in the Navy program but I noticed he was more excited when B.C. threatened to win.

John J. Devlin (Patricia—3 children)—is very active in the field of languages. Congratulations on the publication of John's new book "Spanish Anticlericalism," a study in Modern Alienation published in Las Americas, 1966. Rev. Joseph B. Pomeroy, S.J. instructor of physics for the past two years at B.C. High, has been appointed Director of the Data Processing Center at Holy Cross College. Major Louis A. Casale was awarded the Army Commendation Medal. Now assigned to duty as Medical Chief, Department of Medicine at Walter Reed, Major Casale was commended for his exceptionally meritorious service from September 1963 to August 1966 at Tripler General Hospital in Hawaii. Donald Clougherty has been elected Treasurer of the Attleboro manufacturer of clad metals and component parts for the electronics industry of Tech Reps, Inc. Don, his wife and two children reside in Milton. Major David E. Sanford received the congratulations of Captain Paul O'Callaghan ('58) at a coffee following the presentation of a third Army Commendation Medal to Major Sanford. Both Dave and Paul are assigned to Headquarters, Ft. Baker, California. Dave will attend the 1966-67 class at the Army's Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Ray MacPherson has moved his life and property insurance agency office to Westwood. Ray has been an independent insurance broker since 1959 and is president of the Westwood Rotary Club. He and his wife, June, live with their four children in Westwood.

Another of our insurance minded classmates, Bill Kelly, has completed his 10th year with Connecticut Mutual. Bill has been a recipient of numerous National Quality Awards. Bill lives with his family in Belmont.

John Merna writes from London to invite classmates to visit him in his offices across from the American Embassy. John is Director of the Management Analysis Division and is also Commander-in-Chief, London U.S. Navy. John has a new addition to the "Proud Papas" club with his new daughter. He has four girls and a boy.

The alumni weekend held in June was an outstanding success. Those of the class who took advantage of the Champagne Buffet Dance at McElroy Commons were treated to the usual excellent meal and fine dancing. Tom McHale, John Sullivan, Jack Curtin, all of whom are now living in Wellesley, and Lloyd Taylor were among our classmates who enjoyed the evening.

Jim O'Brien has been seen frequently downtown in recent months. He is Sales Representative for Royfax, a Division of Litton Industries.

Maj. Matthew A. Howard, Jr. who received the Bronze Star Medal for meritorious service in Vietnam, has been appointed assistant professor of military science at Niagara University. Major Stephen Dooling has completed the USAF Weapons Employment Planning Course at the Air University's Warfare Systems School, Maxwell AFB, Ala. Bill Flanagan, Jr. has been named Controller at Electronized Chemicals Corporation here. Dick Mulhern was elected president of the Boston & Maine Railroad. Dick, one of the youngest railroad chief executives in the nation, will be also board chairman until the stockholders' meeting in April.

Recent cards and letters from near and far have brought some interesting news to pass along to you in this issue. Mary Jane Kelly Dempsey sent word from sunny California that the new arrival to her household was a girl. This means that Julie-Ann brings the girls into a majority of three, leaving the boys in a minority of two. Her oldest little girl, Teresa is in second grade. Pat Hines Sheehan now has two boys and two girls as does Lee Mucciaroni Donahue. Travel award goes to Bambi Blais Dannemiller who recently moved stateside from a tour of duty with her husband in Southeast Asia. The trip, to quote Bambi "was interesting." No doubt it was. Have you ever traveled 13,000 miles with seven children? They are temporarily settled in Mississippi but anticipate another move soon, compliments of the Air Force. Mary Jane Brennan Geis sends word of the arrival of her first bundle of joy. Her name is Mary Katherine. Also adding his name to the sons of Alumni list is Peter Heffernan. Peter becomes the fourth boy and fifth child in the Worcester home of Marie (Considine) and Tim. In addition to welcoming the new "little ones" the class sends congratulations to our most recent bride. Dorothy Ching was married on November 26, 1966 and is now Mrs. N. Richard Hughes. She and Dick are living in South Yarmouth.

John Clancy has been appointed as Vice President and Director of Technical Placement of the F. L. Mannix & Company, Inc., Boston, Mass. Jack and his family reside in Chelmsford. Tom Stouter was appointed manager for the Newton Business office by New England Telephone. Tom is married and has three children. John McCarthy has been promoted to Assistant Vice President of the State Street Bank and Trust Company, Boston. Guy DeStefano graduated recently from Xerox Corporation's National Sales Development Center in Fort Lauderdale, Florida. Guy resides in Canton, Mass.

We noted in the last edition of this journal that one of the earlier classes, more particularly the class of 1953, staked an apparent claim to one of our recently ordained Jesuits, Fr. Ken Hughes. Notwithstanding a certain deference and respect for our elders, whose memories might be understandably clouded with the passage of so many years, in the interests of accuracy and pride, we feel it incumbent upon us to set the record straight. Fr. Ken was an original member of the Class of '56, a graduate of B.C. High who hailed from West Roxbury. He sat and sweated through freshman Greek with many of us under Fr. Carl Thayer, before heeding the call to the higher life. Our title to him vested long ago and will submit to no challenge, however skillfully conceived.

John R. Fitzpatrick, formerly of Natick, Massachusetts, has been named Second Vice-President, Sales of Martin & Associates, a national organization of retirement and group benefit plan consultants. Jack is assigned to the company's home office in Dallas, Texas, where he now resides with his wife, Phyllis, and their five children. On his way up the executive ladder, Jack had previously served as a consultant, Field Assistant and District Manager of Martin & Associates' New York regional office. With the advent of Jack in Dallas, we can add yet another name to the swelling number of '56 representatives on Texas soil. Caveat L.B.I.

Tom Burke, CBA, our AA (for Athletic Association) Representative in senior year is practicing law with the New Bedford, Massachusetts, firm of Desmaris and Carey and earning his battle scars as a trial attorney. If my memory serves me correctly, Tom also serves in public office in the Town of Dartmouth, Massachusetts.

Dick Toland is a registered securities representative with Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, Inc. and can be found in their main Boston office at 125 High Street by any of our more affluent brethren, who wish sound investment counsel.

Dr. Bob Renehan recently joined the faculty on the Heights as an Assistant Professor in the Classics Department. Bob brings back to the Heights an estimable background in the field of classical scholarship, including a doctorate from Harvard in Classical Philology. He has served on the faculties at Harvard and the University of California at Berkeley. Bob was a top-flight student and the class of '56 can take pride in accounting for this real quality addition to faculty from its own numbers.

Another of our classics scholars, Dave Gill, S.J., who during his regency also obtained a doctorate in classics at Harvard, is now completing his theology studies in Germany.

Bob Caffrey, originally from Connecticut, now resides in Rockland with his wife and four children. He is employed with the Hartford Steam Boiler Indemnity and Insurance Company in their Boston Office. Bob was recently elected Vice-President of the Old Colony B.C. Club and would welcome membership applications from classmates on or near the South Shore. A letter would reach him c/o Hartford Steam Boiler Indemnity and Insurance Company, 53 State Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

Bill Bulger of South Boston was recently re-elected to his fourth term in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. He is married to the former Mary Foley of Dorchester, who this year presented Bill with their sixth child in as many years of marriage. Bill is a partner of the law firm of Bulger & Finnerty in Boston. Amongst many significant legislative enactments which he has sponsored was a bill which afforded doctors immunity in reporting cases of child-beating. Presumably this legislation will have no application to our class. It should be noted that there was no wife-beater rider attached to the Act. However, I am informed by Representative Bulger that no license by inference was intended.

Frank Ayward was married recently and now resides in Roslindale. Frank is employed as a legal investigator and is studying law. He hopes to join the ranks of the legal profession soon. We wish him and his wife every success and happiness as they begin their voyage on the marital seas.

I would ask your indulgence to allow for a couple of personal notes, one sad, one glad. My father, Ralph Good, an old Eagle from the Class of '25, passed away in October. We would be grateful for your prayers in his behalf. On the happier side of the ledger, we are pleased to note the arrival of our second daughter and fourth child, Kathleen, on November 13th.

Paul Carey's wife, Maureen, gave birth to a son a few weeks ago, the first male arrival in their household, which now numbers three girls plus their new brother. We understand Paul has contained his elation to some extent, although he's had the boy fitted already for a catcher's mit and skates. Maureen won't permit any road work as yet, however.

The population increase ascribable to the class of '56 borders on the singularly astounding. It remains very dubious whether any accolades might be forthcoming from Planned Parenthood, Inc.; more likely, we might remit a reprimand. Whatever, if anything, might come forth from Rome will assuredly be too little too late. Take heart, however, in the knowledge that as a class, we have evidenced unbending obedience to the scriptural mandate which reads on going forth and multiplying. A more literal interpretation or graphic observance could not be accorded any command. Keep up the good work, you're doing a great job.

Please keep your correspondents apprised of your activities, so that we can insure appropriate coverage in the Class News Notes.

We are pleased to note that Owen B. Lynch, Esq. is our representative on the Alumni Board of Directors.

Neil F. Dunn of Danvers, one of our physicists in '56, was appointed by Harvard University last summer as a field consultant in connection with developing a secondary school physics course, entitled 'Harvard Project Physics.' Neil attended a six-week seminar at Pomona College in Claremont, California in 1966, together with about 40 other instructors selected for this project, in preparation for his teaching this new course at Burlington High School, Burlington, Massachusetts, one of the pilot schools selected for introduction of the course. In pursuing a career in education, Neil is following in the footsteps of his father, Cornelius F. Dunn, the former principal, now retired, of Danvers High School, Danvers, Massachusetts.

Mary Lou (Tazioli) Berkenstock was home in Worcester visiting her parents in the Fall. She drove down to Framingham to have lunch at the Sea & Surf with Jo (Fitzpatrick) Tingley, Barbara (Mayr) Stinson, Jeannette McAuliffe, and Alice-Marie (Keany) Dill. All had a great time bringing everyone up on the news and looking over pictures taken at the reunion.

We were happy to hear from Barbara (Mayr) Stinson that her son has come along quite well. He is back at school and doing just fine. Anna Murphy is still in New York but has a change of address. Her new address is: 420 East 55th Street, N.Y., N.Y. She is lonesome and would like to hear from the class.

Congratulations are in order for two gals who have recently had babies. Pat (McNary) Sullivan welcomed her first daughter, on August 19. Her name is Deborah. Anne (Ashley) Auclair welcomed her third child and second son, named Walter Kevin the end of August.

Jeanette McAuliffe is developing a great deal of school spirit by having new licence plates on her Mustang reading B.C.'56.

For the second time in 18 months, Betty Chapowicki was in charge of the nursing care given to President Johnson during his recent surgery at the Bethesda Naval Hospital. Betty is a member of the Navy Nurse Corps and is currently stationed at the White House.

Best wishes to each and everyone of you for a peaceful and prosperous New Year! Congratulations to Dick and Maryellen Martell Barry of Quincy. Dick is now First Asst. District Attorney of Norfolk County.

A long and happy life is wished for Frank Fuery and his bride Patricia, who are the class' newest newlyweds.

The stork hasn't been idle since he brought Bob and Betty Bulman Craven their third child recently. Also, Dr. Frank Buckley, formerly of the Psychology Dept. here, recently welcomed his fifth daughter to the clan.

Something to keep in mind for the month of March is the Testimonial Dinner being planned for Rev. Charles F. Donovan, to be held at the Sheraton on March 11, 1967. There will be more information on this coming, but do keep that date open.

Most sincere condolences to Carol Hines Gleason and the Hines Family on the loss of their father recently. Col. Paul Hines, the director of Boston's Christmas Festival, was a delightful person and gentleman to all who were fortunate enough to know him. May he rest in peace.

Owen Lynch still calls Lynn home and is associated with the firm of Ryan and Holland in Boston. He continues to be active in Lynn politics when time allows. We know Owen will represent '56 magnificently on the Board of Directors.

Bob Kenney is also in the downtown area; he is now with the firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co. Bob received his MBA from Harvard after doing a hitch as an officer in the Navy. He is married to the former Kathy Whalen and is living in Wollaston.

A sub-committee of our class holds meetings on a daily basis, brought about by the fact that they are all employed by the Ames Envelope Company. At the scene are Arthur Fitzgerald, Dan "Duff" Doherty, Bernie Doiron and Ed Lynch. Perhaps we can secure a discount on envelopes for the next class mailing.

Before it becomes too hazy in memory, we would like to add to the list of those who arrived from out of state for the memorable 10th reunion the names of Warren Baltimore, Dave Regan, John Bergin, Pat Cahill, Jim Gallivan and Frannie Foley.

All of the good intentions of the class correspondents are wasted if the classmates do not send information. Please, drop a line to your correspondent. Do it now, while you're thinking of it.

Reminder: Class dues of $3.00 is now due. Make checks payable to the B.C. Class of 1957 and mail to Alumni Hall, c/o Class of 1957.

Attention all School of Education Alumni—Plans are being made to hold a testimonial for Father Charles Donovan, S.J., who has resigned his post as Dean of The School of Education to become Academic Vice-President of the College. Dinner will be held on Saturday, March 11, at the Sheraton Plaza Hotel in Boston. The price of tickets will be $15. Proceeds will cover the cost of dinner and an appropriate gift for Father. Further information can be obtained by contacting any of these four of our classmates who are serving on the committee: Carolmarie Smith, Peg Kenny, Rev. Jim Roach, and Frances (Ford) Plume. Plan now to reserve the night.

Remember this is the Tenth anniversary, so plan to attend as many events as possible. All who attended the cocktail party following homecoming football game had a most enjoyable time. February 11, will find us gathered at Roberts Center for the B.C.-Fordham basketball game. A reception will be held following the game at a place to be announced later. Make plans to attend these affairs. The class directory is now available.

Carol and Vinny Louney announce the arrival of their third child, a son, Douglas born in November. Richard Allen is a claims adjuster for Travelers Insurance Co. Dick and his wife Dolores and their two children are living in Reading. Dr. Edward Amaral and his wife Ellen and their two children are living in Worcester. Bob Amiro is with Wm. Filene's and Sons. Bob and his wife Jean and their two children live in Framingham. Bob Barbarisi lives in Randolph with his wife Maryann and their four children. There is a lot of news from the Washington, D.C. area. Living in Virginia are: Janet Corcoran O'Neill with Bill and their three sons; Ginny Lewis Donnelly and her two daughters; Lois Powers Conley and her four children, and Nancy McMahon O'Toole who has just adopted a baby girl. Right next door in Maryland is Mary Lou Griffin Fitzgerald and Danny with their eight year old daughter. During this past year they have adopted two children. Congratulations to Mary Lou and Dan.

Pat McGuire Toppia and Bill are living in Holyoke, Mass. with their four children. Betty Sweeney Minasian is in Medford with her three children. Living in Wellesley are: Mary Cappolino Bevilacqua and her three children; Kay McDonnell Miller and Howie with their two daughters, Brenda Johnson who is presently Director of Nursing at the Home for the Aged in Jamaica Plain; and Barbara Toth who has a new position as Assistant Supervisor at Boston Lying In Hospital.

I have just heard that Joelle Gongaless Batta is living in Milan, Italy and has an 8 month old baby girl, Lucia Maria. Alma Pallotta Apicella is living in St. Louis where her husband is a radiologist and they have two sons. Barbara Cuneo O'Connell lives in Brighton where her husband has a dental practice. They have three daughters and a son. Cecelia Canniff Doherty and Jim are still in Winchester with their three children. Eileen Teahan Quigley has just moved to Rhode Island with her three children. Ann Groake Guerini is living in Mattapan and has two girls. Pauline Reynolds O'Brien is in Lexington and has three girls and a son. Carol Brady Vegliano is our permanent representative on Cape Cod. She resides in Sandwich with Walt and their three children. Carol is still recuperating from a fractured leg received in an automobile accident over a year ago. Moira Feeley Lyons and Paul have recently moved into a new home in Arlington with their son and daughter. Claudette Bachand is starting her third year as a Navy Nurse at Newport, Rhode Island. Trudy Miller Burke and her husband are renovating an old house in Newton with the help of their two daughters. How's it coming Trudy? Betty Leary Horrigan is back in Milton now with Jack and their two sons. Paula Minihan is still with B.C.S.N. teaching at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Bob Douchev is a newly employed salesman of Shell Oil Company assigned to the Waltham district office. John Manning has been promoted to the position of Manager of Security and Information Services of EG&G Incorporated. John has also been unanimously elected a member of the Administrative Management Society by the Board of Directors. Bill O'Brien has been named manager of Johnson & Johnson's Distribution Center in Menlo Park, California.

If anyone has any news or change of address please forward it to me.

The class wishes to express its sincere sympathy to Marie (Lunney) Zielinski on the death of her father.

Congratulations to Captain and Mrs. John Paganelli, (Virginia Frediani), on the occasion of their marriage, October 8. Jack is a career Marine and has left for a tour of Okinawa and Vietnam. Ginie will reside in Squantum during his absence.

Joining the list of waiting wives are Nancy (Hunt) Cowperthwait and MariGrace (Knowles) Filtzer. Nancy and her children will live in Malden while Bill (also a career Marine) heads to Vietnam for the second time. Midge will remain in Melrose while Horst keeps the Army medics hopping at the Big V Ranch. Pat O'Neil recently announced that she will be married to Joseph Foley next summer. Congratulations Joel! Both are pursuing the coveted Ph.D. at B.C., and Pat recently passed her orals with highest distinction! For her, '66 has been a very good year!

The only birth reported lately was that of a third boy to Betsy (Power) and Frank Keohane. The team is shaping up nicely! Claire (Malis) and Paul Kingston and family have returned to Beantown following a seven-year absence. They are building a home in Scituate and temporarily residing in Holbrook. Welcome back!

Your school of education correspondent is writing these notes from central Illinois where he is passing the Christmas holidays and enjoying a change of pace.

Rogette Abizaid is now teaching upper division courses in French literature and language at Boston University. Come early summer, Rogette will become Mrs. Jim Moran. Jim is a graduate of School of Ed., 1961. They will be remaining in Boston for a while.

On May 18 last, Frannie (Bessom) Herman and husband, Burton, became the proud parents of their first — a son, David Bradley. The Hermans will be moving to New York or New Jersey in February.

Late in the autumn Mary Watts returned from an extended stay in Europe.

Maureen (Jackson) Turley became a mother for the second time on July 8. Her new son, John Edward, was born exactly one year after his sister, Joan Marie.

Christmas was made even merrier for Marge and Gene Prior with the arrival of Barry Michael. This makes it number three for the Priors.

In August, 1966, Roberta Berrane became Mrs. John Petrocelli. John is also a B.C. grad.

Dr. Elmer and Lorraine (Cassidy) Pfefferkorn will soon be taking up residence in Hanover, N.H. where Dr. Pfefferkorn will be an associate professor at Dartmouth College.

Ann O'Meara is now the holder of two additional degrees; M.Ed. from Boston State and the Master of Social Work from Boston College. Ann is supervisor of Social services for the Division of Child Guardianship in Brockton.

Congratulations go to: Bill Connell, of Encino, California, who became a father for the first time with the birth of his daughter Monica, in April. Bill has also just been promoted to the Presidency of Marine Technology Incorporated, a division of Litton Industries.

Bill Shea, who was married August 6th to Judy Taddeo, an ex-American Airlines stewardess. Bill flies as co-pilot for American on one of their multi-engine jets. He's also a flying captain with the Mass. National Guard. In his spare time, he sails out of Marblehead.

John Reino, whose wife, Marie, just presented him with their second son in December. John instructs at Dean Junior College.

Dave Parent, who was married June 12th to Joice Savastano. Dave is now with the Essex County Bank & Trust Company organizing a computer system after extensive experience with WECCO.

Brian McCarthy on his upcoming marriage in April.

Ken Kiley, of Louisville, Kentucky, on his third child.

Jack Coney, who was married February 19th to Stephanie Coughlin. Jack is Vice President and Sales Manager of the Bangor Drug Company.

Jack Cronin is in advertising, public relations and sales promotion with Cronin Advertising Agency, 50 Federal Street. (His own).

Army Captain Bill Cratty is stationed at Fort Shafter, Captain Ed Snow at Munster, Germany and Captain Owen Quinn at Inchon, Korea.

In case you haven't noticed, there are new class correspondents. Help us out and write or call us with your "news tips." If your name hasn't appeared recently in this column, it's only because we haven't heard from you.

Again this year your class had a most successful dance after the B.C.-H.C. game. This was held at Alumni Hall and over 150 of our classmates were there. If you missed it there will two more opportunities this year to "get-together." On Friday, February 10th we have reserved a block of tickets for the B.C.-St. Lawrence hockey game. A "social" will follow at Alumni Hall. The supply of tickets is limited so order now from Jack Wiseman at 776-1454 or 625-6532. Plans are also being formulated for a Spring cocktail party. Details will be forthcoming.

Dues!! If you haven't paid, send a check for $3 payable to the Class of 1959 to Al Wistalko, c/o Alumni Hall.

What's new with our classmates? Tom Whalen has just completed a speedy sales training program with Univac and will be soon approaching you with his high powered sales pitch for Univac's latest computer. If you need legal assistance, Jack O'Leary is a legal aid in the Governor's office. Jack's wife Sally recently gave birth to a baby boy, their second child. Tom Hughes has forsaken the pressures of the business world for the pressures of teaching. Congratulations to Dick Flanagan who was married this Fall and is living in Avon. Bill York was appointed an Assistant Commercial Loan Officer at the New England Merchants National Bank. If you need part time help see Dave Breen who's a sales representative for Task Force here in Boston. Our last news of Dick Whelan indicates that he is a contract administrator for Raytheon in Bedford. Recently saw Frank Collins and his wife, Gail. They and their two and a half children are living in Leeds and Frank is with a law firm in Northampton. After a year in Germany, Bob Churchill returned to the U.S. and is selling for Honeywell in Vermont. Bob Denney was at our last social and he is teaching at Iona College in New Rochelle, N.Y.; also a part-time basketball referee. If your children have scholastic or other problems and if they are students at Maynard Junior High School, see Joe Fallo who is now principal. When you're in Rome, visit

Sam Blair who's there working for an architectural firm. Sam graduated from the Harvard School of Design. Dr. Tom Halpin is administering to the wounded and sick in Viet Nam. Euclid, Ohio is the home of John Lane who married an Ohioan. He's teaching thereabouts. Dave Dinardi is an attorney for the Federal Trade Commission. Peter McLaughlin who recently won the men's singles handicap tennis tournament at Longwood has been named Treasurer of James H. McManus & Co. Let's eat plenty of ice cream! Vice Wade, a student at Suffolk Law was working in the claims department for All-State Ins. Co. St. Louis' population increased when Roger Twyman, his wife, Shiela (Education) and their five kids moved to that city. Roger is with the U.S. Civil Service Commission. Congratulations to Joe and Mary Sayers who had their first child this past November. John Nolan is selling for Thatcher Glass Mfg. Co. Al Vitale is now Controller of Busch, Inc. in Norwood. He, his wife, and four children are living in Lexington. Pete Delmonico is still at Mass. Teachers Association but finally got married in August. They are living in Stowe. Ray Asselin is Associate Executive Director of the Community Council in Springfield. Ron Arcieri is a social worker for the State Department of Mental Health and is living in Marlboro. Another worldwide traveler is Pete Murphy. He, his wife, Jacqueline (a French girl) and their son that arrived this past August have been assigned to the Consulate in Cordoba, Argentina since April, 1965. Pete is Vice Consul there. They are looking forward to a four-year stay in Milan, Italy after a month's leave in March which will be spent in Boston. Our sympathy is with Jim Healy whose father died in December.

I write you this bit of news looking out my apartment window over the beautiful city of San Francisco. I am living here with Claire Lawton both of us having made the trek across country in September. We are working at the University of California Medical Center. Claire as a supervisor and myself as a staff nurse in the Intensive Care Unit. Well our class has its first set of twins—Julie Maureen and James Michael born in September to Maureen Nagle Banks. Maureen has her hands full with her new family and new home in Jamaica Plain.

Ann Manning and Nancy Magri were joined at Catholic University this fall by Mickey McHale who is starting her Master's work. Hope some of you in the Boston area were able to see Chris Murphy Mayor who spent Christmas away from the Swiss Alps. She and Mahas took their two daughters to spend an American holiday with the Murphy family. Went to a lovely summer wedding that of Kay Malloy to Dick O'Neare. They are now living on St. Mary's Road in Brookline. Our congratulations to Kathy Sullivan who was married this past fall.

Welcome home to Lois Lane Carroll. Brian has started his residency at the Massachusetts General so the Carroll' Lois-Brian Jr.-Jimmy and Andy are once again settled in the Boston area.

It is hard to keep up on the news being so far away so I ask you all to please keep in touch. If anyone is interested in becoming Class Correspondent do let me know.

Twofold congratulations are in order for Mickey and Patty Booth McDonnell. Colleen Mary arrived on August 20, weighing 8 lbs., 9 oz. Mickey was studying in Ireland last year and his play "All gods die on Friday" won 1st prize in a writing contest. It concerns the reactions of eight people on the day John F. Kennedy was assassinated, and was produced in Dublin last October.

Jim Hegarty is assistant manager of the line-haul system for Sears Roebuck Company. He and Beverly are the proud parents of Jim, Jr. 2½. Bob and Ellen Agostino have four children, Joyce, Robert, David, and Thomas ages 5, 4, 2 & 1 respectively. Bob taught in Connecticut and received his masters' degree at the University of Bridgeport. He is studying on a doctoral fellowship program at Ball State University, Muncie, Indiana.

Your correspondent, Paula Fitzgerald represented the women graduates at B.C.'s Commencement Exercises last June.

Dan and Marie Dickson MacDonald studied in Hawaii last summer. Both received M.Ed degrees from State College at Framingham and are teaching in the Framingham schools.

Jim and Betty Wallace Lowry welcomed their first child Cynthia Ann.

A note of thanks should be given to Ed Hurly for his fine job as A&S class correspondent for the past two years.

Five years after graduation the latest information from our fellow students finds them in these various pursuits.

Wedding bells will peal out on February 19, 1967 for Barbara Gildaue whose engagement to Bob Sullivan (class of 1963 also B.C. Law 1966) was announced before Christmas. Bob graduates from O.C.S. in Newport, Rhode Island on February 3, 1967.

I received a very informative letter from Pat (Kalano) Brien. Pat lives in Springfield with her husband, Ray (B.C. School of Social Work 1964) and their baby, Thomas who was born in June, 1966. The news from Pat includes: Barbara (Whelan) Deckers and Pat had their second baby, a boy, during the summer, they have one daughter; Alberta (Maiorano) and Chuck now own their own funeral home. Alberta is teaching in an elementary school; Madeleine (Baibeau) Chandler and Brad were living in Virginia while Brad was at Law School, current address, unknown; Sheila Smith is now teaching at Carney Hospital. She lives in Brookline with Ann Hurley and Fran Bonanno who are still at the Harvard Research Unit at Boston City Hospital. Carol Dee also lives with them and is a head nurse in one of the Out-Patient Clinics at Boston City; Judy (Shannon) and Tom Lynch were residing in Binghamton, N.Y. with their year-old baby, Beth, in June; Diane Suchecki is teaching in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Joan (Cardiff) has had her second daughter. She and her husband live in Burlington, Vermont; Marieanne (Plante) Blake had a baby boy sometime this year; and Judy (O'Brien) and John Caron who live in Westfield are expecting another baby in January to keep 20 month-old Cheryl company. Thanks for all that news Pat.

Mary (Noonan) and Vin Limauro added another Air Force dependent, baby Paul, to their income tax deductables. Paul was born in October and he and his brother, David, still like Dayton, Ohio. Out in Las Vegas, New Mexico, Janet (Mullen) and Dan Vigil are also expecting a blessed event in January.

Down in Stoughton, Carmen (Mastrocola) and Charlie McNamara added another Irish name to the list of future alumni, Michael Charles. He and his sister, Maura, would love some visitors, Carmen tells me.

Margaret (Kuhn) and John Sydlick have returned to the East Coast with their two children. They are living in Bellingham.

I finally heard from long lost Diana Newman. Diana just completed a three year stint as Assistant Head Nurse on a Women's Medical floor at Bellevue Hospital. She starts in January at New York Hospital, Cornell Medical Center, in Pediatrics. Good to hear from you Diana and Happy New Year To All.

Happy Holidays brings Happy news for the class of '65. Heard from Rachel Salter. Who has an apartment in Boston with Diane Ross. She is still at Boston City. She sends the news that Katy Shanahan is in New Jersey. Kathy Edwards Nottage is expecting in February. Ann (Coleman) Stadler's, John is in Vietnam as is Jeanne Flyntz's Bill. Jane Grainger Daley is expecting in April. Sheila Quinn, contrary to the last writing, is presently a clinical instructor at Children's Medical Center, Boston. Recently she attended the wedding of Carol Brown and Paul Deastlan. She occasionally sees Netti Calvi who is at Boston Floating. Netti had a fine trip to Europe seeing all the sights from London to the Continent. She also said that Mary E. Evans is still at Georgetown in Washington, D.C. and likes it so much she may never leave.

Weddings have been numerous. Barbara Brown and Bob Elliott who are presently living in Chicago. Rosemary Thomas and Jack MacKinnon, CBA '62, in the MacKinnon's wedding party were Mrs. Phillip McCarthy (Marie Formichelli), Janet Hunt, and Mrs. William Gately (Fran Gately).

Nancy Sousa and Ray Daly were married last June 9, at a military ceremony. From Quantico, Va., the Daly's hope to go to Pensacola, Fla. where Ray hopes to attend flight school. He's a 2nd Lt. USMC. Marcia Lee and Jimmy McGowan were married on Nov. 19, at St. Theresa's, West Roxbury. Joan McGregor was among the wedding party. Would have made it home for this wedding but the scheduling of a nurse sometimes leaves little room for much more than work. Joan McGregor is still at NYU, but will start her fourth and final semester in January. Her letters sound really enthusiastic and that master's degree is becoming more and more a reality. Her roomie, Kathy Keegan, is still with the VNA, NYC, and travels around quite a bit. Sorry we missed when she was in San Francisco this summer.

I recently received a letter from Mrs. J. A. Noonan, Jr., (Nancy Frenz). She, her husband, Jerry (1st Lt. USA), and son Matthew are living in Heidelberg, Germany. They send a big hello to all.

The baby business is really booming with Gene and Joyce (Siwinski) Clifford becoming the parents of a son, Michael, in June. Steve and Jane (Murphy) Otis are the parents of a son. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hagan (Judy Nisius) have a new daughter, Mary Ellen. Bill and Sheila (Lynch) Josephs have a son, Craig. Eve Kelley and hubby have a son, Craig. Jo-ann (Plasse) and Steve Root are expecting in January. Steve is half through his tour in Viet Nam. Ed and Gail (Sylvester) Cashman, are expecting in April.

Heard from Betsy O'Neill over the holidays. She's at Columbia Grad. School. Big News and happenings for Attu Cudley. She will be leaving in January for a year's stay in Heidelberg, Germany. Sounds so great and she's so happy.

Liz Shea and Betty Warcing are in San Francisco at a new address, Stanton St. Liz spent a few days in Mexico recently. Betty was home in Waltham for awhile in September.

Here in San Diego, Stella Kosowicz and I are expecting a new roomie in early January, Claire Polek. Claire just can't leave California. Stella and I have recently returned from a trip via U.S. Navy to Hawaii, Wai-kiki, Diamond Head and Don Ho just left stars in our eyes. We both are sporting new cars: Stella's Camaro and I with a +4 Morgan. Stella also had a happy turkey at home in Nabasset for a short but great 6 days. We recently had some visitors to our home here on Mission Beach. Claire Tyrell and Muffie Tilley stopped by and stayed a week. We all had a ball. Ann Pietrasek is here with us at USNH. She continues in the O.R. Ann flew home this month and had a white Christmas, New England style. Charlie Bryan, B.C. '64 CBA, is stationed here at U.S. Naval Station recuperating from a recent illness. To all my fellow Navy nurses, How are you? Heard via letter and phone from Joann Knight who despite a six day schedule is having a good time. Hope the rest of you are. To close, a belated wish to all of you for the happiest of 1967. Please write and let me know what you are up to.

Sr. Virginia Maria McGovern, S.C. has become Director of the Guidance Services of Cathedral High School, New York. Sister is currently studying at Hunter College, and in February will be matriculated there in a degree program in Administration and Impervision of Secondary Schools.

Law School, Dick Lovett is attending Catholic University for his Masters in Philosophy. Joseph Carmody is Executive Officer USNR aboard ship stationed at Kadiak, Alaska. Jim Whalen had a good year with the Pats. and is engaged to Sheila Rossi. Bill Shann, still under contract with the Philadelphia Eagles, broke a shoulder in pre-season camp. Bill Cronin is playing with the Miami Dolphins. He and his wife Jackie welcomed their second addition, Brian Patrick, during the season. Quite a time was had by all who attended Dick Cremen and Elaine Peretto's wedding in November. It was like a reunion. Don Moran was the best man and Bob Pisin-ski, Frank Grywalski, Charlie Smith, and John Frechette were among the wedding party. Cindy Scalyie, Denice Zenobie, Liz McKenna stood up for Elaine. Guests from B.C. were too numerous to list.

Although the B.C.-Holy Cross game was a disappointment, the reunion parties were a great success. Dave Schilpp came home from Chicago to become engaged to Mark Kirk. Ed Downes is working up-state New York with Cramer Electronics and his side-kick, Hal Cail is doing well at Babson Grad. Business. Bill Hayward is with the Air Wing at DaNang in Viet Nam. Also in Vietnam are Paul Calabria and Bill Schoeck. Mike Roddy finally came out of hiding and due to a disability will be discharged from the Navy. Dave Wilson is at OCS-Army Engineering at Virginia. Joe Mollicone looks quite prosperous and is a very proud father. Bob Sullivan is with Pontiac Division of General Motors.

Many of us were saddened by the untimely death of Diane Cronin's father. Jim Lomac was called home from Okinawa due to his father's death. Jim will now be stationed in New Jersey. Vin Giffuni has become engaged to Maryanne Peters. Neal Hunt is an Asst. Manager at Jordan Marsh Co. "Boots" Connelly had the unfortunate experience of being one of the teachers beaten recently in Roxbury. Bob Perrotti, a neighbor here in Hartford, is doing well at U.Conn Law School and can't be budged from the books. He recently became engaged. Jay Poor is working for Sears & Roebuck in Philadelphia. He and his wife have a baby girl.

Bob DelSignore has a wild ski resort in New Hampshire with some friends, next door to another chalet rented by 38 "young debutantes."

Mel Manson and Louis Doody are working on their masters degree. Louis travelled the far East this summer before returning to the University of Hawaii to continue his work in Asian studies. Ken Ritchie is still in grad. school. He travelled to Portugal on a grant this summer. John E. Fedele is engaged to Paula M. Corbett, Ed. '66. John is attending B.U. School of Law where he has been elected a member of the Law Review. Paula is teaching in Dedham. They plan an August wedding. Doug LaBrecque is at Stanford Medical School. Doug was home in Waterbury, Conn. working at a Waterbury hospital. John McCabe is engaged to Deborah Trombly. John and Debbie plan on an April Wedding. John McGillicuddy and Carol Head are also engaged and they will be married in June.

Married last summer were Mary Jane McLaughlin and Dave Angelone. Madelene Zollo became Mrs. George Pope during the summer. Carol Ney and Thomas Raynor were married on July 16.

The college graduate has a kind of obligation to his Alumni Association no different essentially from what he owes his company, profession or community.

What a man does with his life can be a direct reflection on the college which provided him the educational assets which enabled him to make his mark in this fast-paced world.

Our Company has benefited from its association with many Boston College graduates who have contributed their support and loyalty to many areas of our business. This association has created in all of us a fine image of B.C.
